NAZIS TURN POWER TO WEST AS REDS FINISH POLISH CLEAN-UP

Germany Pours Thousands Into Siegfried Line

Berlin, Predicting Early Collapse Of Poland, Rushes More Troops To Stem French Advance In West; Balkans Worried By Russian Invasion.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—Thousands of steel-helmeted German reserves were reported flooding into the Siegfried line today to strengthen Germany's stand against the French advance on Nazi soil.

The movement of German reserves toward the western front was regarded by military experts here as a sign Nazis expect Polish resistance on the eastern front to collapse soon.

Heavily outnumbered, the Poles appeared from reports reaching here to be surrounded by Germans on the west, north and south and by Russians on the east.

Russia's invasion of Poland shocked France, although the nation expected it. The press condemned it almost unanimously as treachery. Officially, however, France gave no hint whether she would classify the Russian move as an act of war against allied interests or accept the Soviet explanation that the invasion was undertaken merely to protect Russian interests on the assumption the Polish government no longer existed.

Official circles, nevertheless, emphasized France and Great Britain were determined to "crush Hitlerism" and free Poland of foreign troops.

(The British and French entered the war on Poland's side in fulfillment of treaties of mutual assistance which bound them to help defend Polish independence against any aggression.)

Daladier Hurries Back.

Premier Daladier came back from the German-French front to study the new circumstances. He had been visiting his army of poilus in lines reported within German territory.

What many Frenchmen had predicted apparently was approaching reality—German and Russian forces were nearing a junction close to Rumanian frontier where they would have a channel for Russia to send Germany supplies for her war in the west.

Frenchmen wondered what success this might have in counterbalancing the British-French naval blockade, a factor in Germany's World war defeat.

Informed sources here regard the entry of Russia into Poland a blow to neutrality of small states of southeastern Europe. They consider Rumania particularly endangered because she holds territory once belonging to Russia. Should the conflict spread to the Balkans, these sources expect a quick reaction from Turkey.

In some French quarters also it is believed the Russian action may bring the official policy of

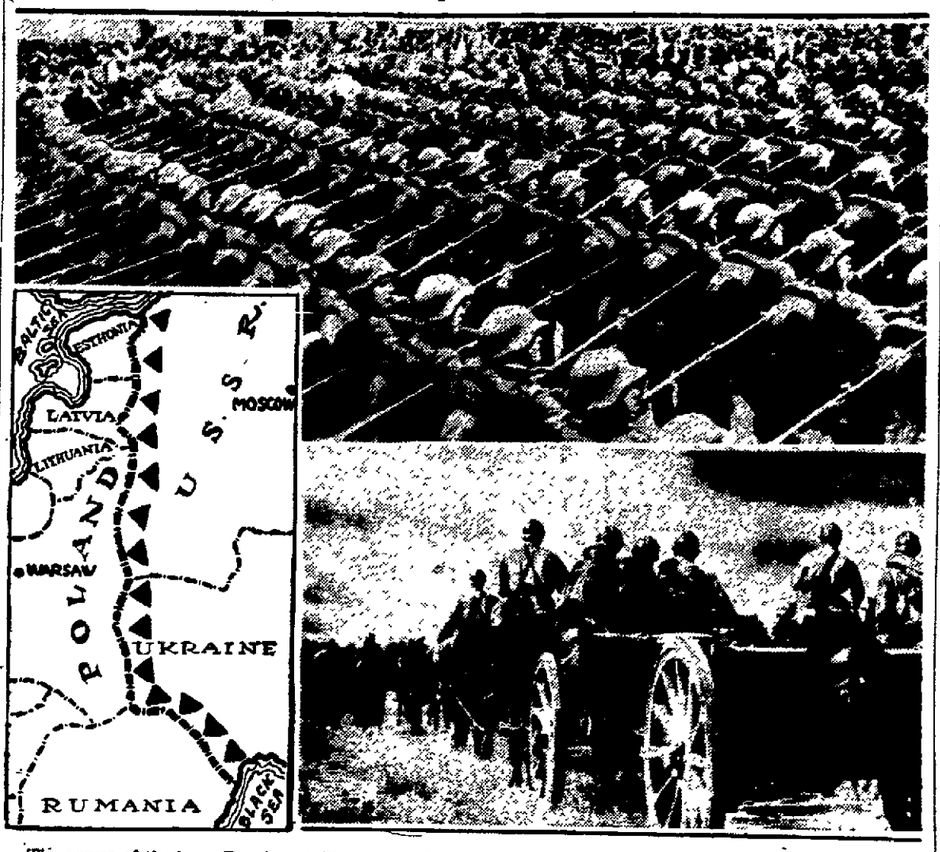
Russian Power Completes Poland's Downfall



The power of the huge Russian army, unleashed yesterday, apparently had completed the downfall of Poland today, with its army routed from all except Warsaw and a few other cities. Germany and Russia were reported already to have completed plans for partition of the country. Picture at the top shows massed Russian infantry. The map at the left shows how the huge Soviet army was mobilized before it struck. At lower right is Russian heavy artillery.

London Announces Destroyers Sink Enemy Craft After Attack on Ship.

(By United Press)

LONDON — The ministry of information announced today that the aircraft carrier Courageous had been sunk by an enemy submarine.

The ministry said:

"The admiralty regrets to announce that His Majesty's ship Courageous has been lost by enemy submarine action."

The ministry said that destroyers and merchant ships picked up survivors and were now returning to harbor.

The survivors were expected to land today, indicating that the aircraft carrier had gone down not far from the coast.

It was added: "Next of kin will be informed as soon as information can be obtained as to names of survivors."

The ministry added that the submarine was believed to have been sunk by destroyers.

Manned By 1,216.

The Courageous was a 1914-1918 war class of aircraft carrier, of 22,500 tons and a complement of 748 navy men and 468 Royal Air force men, a total of 1,216.

The ship was 786¼ feet in length.

It mounted 16 4.77 inch guns, 4 three-pounder guns and 17 smaller guns.

It carried 48 airplanes according to official rating.

The ship was completed in 1916. Originally it was intended as a cruiser, with a view to operations in the Baltic.

The ship was altered in 1924 to an aircraft carrier and this work was completed in 1928. Its total cost including conversion was about £4,000,000 (at par about $20,000,000).

The information ministry said that the Courageous had been serving with the reserve fleet since August, with a reduced complement of aircraft.

Since the war started, it was said, it had been protecting merchant ships against submarines.

It was the first sinking of a warship by a submarine—except for whatever action Germany took against Polish ships in the Baltic.

Red Army Marches 50 Miles Into War-Torn Poland; Europe Hears Soviet Or Italy Will Propose Armistice As Soon As Poles Surrender Nation.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Well informed foreign office sources said today that Russian and German military officials now are negotiating their respective zones for occupation in Poland. It was believed in these sources that the German and Soviet troops would contact each other within two days in Poland.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—The British government has decided to protest to the Soviet government against the Russian invasion of Poland, according to information reaching foreign embassies here today.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW — The Red armies of Soviet Russia swept deeper into war-weakened Poland from the east today as diplomatic circles predicted the buffer-state created after the World war would be divided again between its two invaders.

Word from the Red army general staff of a constantly narrowing wedge between Russian and German troops revived reports an armistice in the European war will be proposed as soon as Poland's fate is determined.

Such a proposal, diplomatic sources said, might be made by Russia or Germany's axis partner, Italy.

With the first move from the east that pinned Poland in a vice yesterday, Moscow informed Poland's allies, Britain and France, the Soviet Union would follow a neutral policy toward them.

In a radio broadcast by Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff and in his notes to 24 governments represented in Moscow, crossing of the frontier was described as necessary to protect once-Russian minorities in eastern Poland.

Molotoff said the Polish Government "ceased to exist," and the minorities—11,000,000 white Russians and Ukrainians — were "abandoned entirely to their fate."

SHELBY CYCLIST KILLED BY TRAIN

Death of Boy, 16, County's First Traffic Fatality in 10 Weeks.

Sudden death, which has been absent from Richland county highways for the last 10 weeks, struck in Shelby this morning claiming the life of a 16-year-old youth who rode his bicycle into the path of a Baltimore and Ohio freight train.

The victim is James McGown, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McGown, 43 North Broadway avenue, Shelby. He was instantly killed at 6:35 a. m. at the Whitney street grade crossing.

Richland County's 1939 Traffic Toll

This date last year—18

McGown's death was the first traffic fatality to be recorded in Richland county since July 9. It brings to 15 the number of persons killed in accidents so far this year, equalling the number of dead for the same period in 1938.

Seven other persons were injured, none seriously in three other accidents in the county over the week-end while at least 11 persons were killed in other parts of the state.

McGown, a junior at Shelby high school, was on his way to the postoffice to collect mail for the Shelby Cycle company where he was employed before and after school, when he met death.

Witnesses said he apparently failed to see the approaching train

Relief From Heat Here In Big Way, A 50-Degree Skid

Mansfielders who sweltered in 95-degree weather Saturday shivered today as the mercury fell to 45, close to the frost line.

The temperature dropped 23 degrees Sunday when the high was 72 and then skidded the rest of the way Sunday night. At noon today the reading was 61, just 30 degrees below the noon temperature Saturday.

Warmer weather will return by tonight or Tuesday, the weatherman said. It will be mostly cloudy Tuesday with the possibility of showers by Wednesday, the forecast said.

Mansfield received .18 of an inch of rainfall in two light showers over the week-end, not enough to be of much benefit to parched lawns and pastures.

While Ohio found relief from the record heat in cool breezes from the northwest, a new heat wave apparently was developing in the far west. Los Angeles had a reading of 100 yesterday, highest of the summer.

Roosevelt Calls Knox, Landon to Join In Discussion of Neutrality

Up In Smoke

As Blood of Europe Spills In War Between Democracies, Dictators.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In the stories below, foreign affairs experts of the Associated Press, United Press, and International News Service reveal their "behind the scenes" observations of the fast moving European war developments.)

By J. C. OESTREICHER
International News Service Foreign Editor.

What many observers here and abroad persist in describing as Adolf Hitler's earnest hopes for an "early peace" went up in smoke today, presumably somewhere in the North Sea.

One of the proudest links in Great Britain's chain of battle armor, the giant aircraft carrier Courageous, went to the bottom under the impact of a German submarine torpedo.

As that sleek, machine-propelled instrument of death streaked through the water toward the Courageous' heavily armored hull, only to tear into her midriff a moment later and score the first real naval victory of the current hostilities, the British navy might have been heard to cry in unison: "The war is on!"

More important than the dismemberment of Poland, more important than the stunning intervention of Soviet Russia in this gradually spreading conflict may the sinking of the Courageous prove to be.

For it was a blow to British pride and prestige far overshadowing the setbacks England has encountered in the field of shady diplomacy. It is a foregone conclusion that the "senior service" of the Empire as the navy is known, is not going to take this lying down.

Didn't Consider Morale.

The mentality and morale of a nation's army and navy are factors of prime importance in the waging of warfare. And if Hitler thought for a moment he might undermine Britain's determination by destroying in a single blow one of the leading vessels

Week-End Sharply Alters War Picture

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
(UP Foreign News Editor)

Germany, triumphant over Poland's armies, struck back at the British blockade on the seas today when a Nazi U-boat sank the big aircraft carrier Courageous.

Disclosing the underwater attack in an announcement indicating a number of British casualties but expressing belief that the German submarine had been sunk, the British government faced momentous immediate decisions in a European war front that had changed drastically over the week-end.

Soviet Russian troops, ordered on "a mission of emancipation" by Josef Stalin, surged almost 40 miles into eastern Poland along a 500-mile front.

In both Moscow and Berlin, it was indicated in official sources

Russia's military occupation of eastern Poland is an unescapable reminder that the trend of the European war depends in large degree at this injuncture on the Soviet Union's intentions.

Even the possible extension of the war into a world conflict may hinge on Moscow.

Europe now stands at the first big cross-roads of the general upheaval. The turning that is taken will be determined by the interpretation which the Anglo-French allies place on Russia's action.

Neither Paris nor London thus far has expressed any official opinion regarding this development which has staggered both of them, even though it wasn't unexpected. They must decide quickly, how-

Two occupants of an apartment on the second floor escaped when passersby awakened them. Fire Chief William Biddulph said the fire was caused by a short circuit.

Censorship Controls Flow of War News

(By Associated Press)

Censorship of news is effective in nearly all European countries. It is especially thorough in Great Britain, France and Germany.

So far the chief apparent hindrance imposed by censorship has been disruption of normal communications, but it is obvious that censors seek to prevent the sending of unfavorable news from their respective countries.

Some news dispatches are transmitted in ten or fifteen minutes; others are delayed for hours and some doubtless are suppressed by the censorship.

BERLIN: Poland Breaking Up With Troops On Run, Nazis Say

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(U.P.)—An official news agency dispatch from Moscow tonight said that German and Soviet troops had met at Brest-Litovsk, in Poland.

(By United Press)

BERLIN—An army communique said today that the Polish campaign was "approaching a conclusion."

It was announced that "most of Poland" had been occupied by German troops, that Polish airplanes had disappeared from all fronts and that "numerous units of the air force and anti-aircraft have been assembled and stand ready for application elsewhere." The reference presumably was to the western front.

Word that Warsaw had been stormed was expected momentarily. It was announced at noon that Warsaw's defenders had failed to send negotiators last night to keep a rendezvous with German army officers in "no man's land" outside the city, to arrange for evacuation of civilians and foreign diplomats.

The Germans had suggested a meeting at 10 p. m. and it was announced that no Polish negotiators had arrived at midnight.

It was announced officially that the German and Russian army operations in Poland had no objectives conflicting either with German-Soviet interests or with the German-Soviet non-aggression past.

The communique on Polish operations said that Lemberg, chief city in the southeast, had been surrounded, and Lublin, between Lemberg and Moscow, had been captured.

"Paris of the German army have reached a line extending from Lemberg to Wlodzimirz to Brest-Litovsk to Bialstok and thereby occupied the greater part of Poland," the communique said.

(That line would form an arc encompassing approximately the western two-thirds of Poland.)

FLIGHT: Polish Leaders Flee 2 Armies, Seek Haven In London

(By Associated Press)

CERNAUTI, Rumania—President Ignace Moscicki and Foreign Minister Jozef Beck, who fled from two invading armies in Poland, were reported today planning to take their government to London. Before leaving Rumania, it was said, they might receive foreign diplomats in a final audience.

There were reports that Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, Polish army commander, and members of the general staff had escaped into neutral Rumania. This could not be confirmed.

Seventy additional Polish airplanes landed at this frontier town, bringing to 202 the number reaching here within the past few days.

The planes were seized and the fliers interned, as were Polish soldiers who crossed the border. They were disarmed. Privates and non-commissioned officers were taken to a camp. Officers were sent to a

Reasons Why Lads Quit Girl Friends

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The following letter is similar to a great many I get from girls:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"For about a year I have been going steady with a boy of 20. I am 19 years old. He came over two and three times a week, and we used to write almost every day. About two months ago he stopped everything. Doesn't come over any more, and I never get a line from him. Shall I write to him and ask what's wrong? Please advise me.

NETTIE."

I've had letters from boys telling me their reasons for quitting certain girls, and I'll give you a few of them.

The chief motive is a greater interest in some other girl. And they say it's hard to confess to the girl friend that they're interested in someone else, so they just take the line of least resistance and break off without any explanation.

Wouldn't it be a thousand times kinder if a boy would get up courage to tell girl Number One the truth? He could always hide behind a little note, and wind up by telling her he will always remember their friendship with gratitude.

Some boys write me their reason for quitting the girl friend is that they're too poor to show her the attention they seem to think she's entitled to. They think that unless they have definite prospects in sight they ought not to "waste a girl's time."

Then again, some girls are absolutely overbearing when they try to show their power over devoted swains. They boss and bully the young man until he takes his lacerated feelings to someone less domineering.

Another reason boys quit girls is because the girls show too plainly how much they care. The average young amn becomes bored with a girl who shows too plainly that she cares for him at the beginning of an affair.

Another reason, and not the least of them, is the girl's family. When a young man shows the first symptoms of becoming serious, the family may become such ardent allies of his that he's frightened out of his wits. They trail out of the room when he arrives, leaving daughter alone with him, conspicuously. They sing her praises. They talk of her popularity, and they wonder if Mary ever should marry, how they'd get along without her.

Fill Basket With These For Picnic

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

THERE'S STILL time for that picnic, and a good way to handle such a state of affairs is through the medium of quick-frozen foods. Pack your basket with several cartons of quick-frozen chopped steak and an iron skillet. It will defrost while on your way to the camping site; you won't need to take along a portable refrigerator. Serve the hamburger from the skillet, pipping hot, between halved buttered rolls.

Here are two versions of hamburger that will have the flavor appeal of filet mignon, and which are just the ticket for that picnic party:

Chopped Steak Sandwich needs two one-pound packages to make six sandwiches. Cut each to thirds and saute in a small amount of butter, pressing and flattening meat slightly while cooking. Season well and place between slices of hot buttered toast or rolls, garnishing with parsley. Serve immediately.

Chopped Steak Sausage Rolls are made with one eight-ounce package of quick-frozen chopped meat (thawed), one teaspoon minced onion, one-half teaspoon salt, dash of pepper and four link sausages, cooked and drained. Combine chopped steak, onion and seasonings. Shape into four flat cakes and wrap around sausages, pressing well to seal securely. Cook in hot skillet in small amount of fat, turning to brown on both sides. This is a particularly fine picnic dish.

Oyster Dish.

Quick frozen foods are splendid even when a picnic is not the order of the day. If you are an oyster addict and object to the ban of the oyster during the months without an "R," try one of the brands of quick-frozen oysters now on the market. A 12-ounce can provides the basis for a grand oyster feast such as Oysters a la King

The recipe requires two cups sliced mushrooms, four tablespoons butter, one-fourth cup thinly sliced green pepper, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon each pepper and Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth teaspoon scraped onion, five tablespoons flour, two and one-half cups milk, two tablespoons chopped pimento, one 12-ounce box quick-frozen oysters (thawed), two tablespoons butter and two egg yolks, slightly beaten. Saute mushrooms in four tablespoons butter in top of double boiler, over direct heat, for five minutes. Add green pepper, salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce and onion. Continu cooking until mushrooms are tender. Remove from fire. Add flour and blend. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Saute oysters in saucepan in two tablespoons butter very gently until edges begin to curl. Add to sauce in double boiler. Pour small amount sauce over egg yolks and blend; then return to double boiler and cook about one minute. Serve on hot buttered toast. A grand dish for six.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I never know which one of you is the principal and which the accomplice in your nefarious schemes," my father said, and I dropped a placating kiss upon the top of his head.

"What does it matter if you fall for them?" I said audaciously. "But won't you please eat this luncheon now? I'll promise you may stop between mouthfuls if Harry comes before you finish."

"On that promise I agree," he said finally, "not because I need the food, but because you appear to have set your heart upon my eating luncheon."

"I have," I said fervently and truthfully, sending a silent signal to Miss Whitlock which she answered by rolling the wheeled table close to my father and uncovering the dishes upon it

"I'll plug in the toaster," she said practically. "This metal container is piping hot, but you may want some freshly-made toast. Katie has sent up extra bread and butter."

"Won't you have something with me?" my father asked.

"I'd love to," I told him, with an appraising eye upon the coffee pot "I think Katie must have planned for me. That's a big pot. I'll have some coffee and toast and marmalate. But nothing else, or I'll spoil my luncheon downstairs. Katie will be terribly fussed if I don't do full justice to her efforts."

"They're noble efforts," my father said when he had tasted the hot chicken broth w hich Miss Whitlock put before him as a first course. She put the coffee pot and two cups and saucers on the table before me. Then she looked questioningly at my father.

"Will you need me for a few minutes?" she asked, and I doffed a mental hat to her tact.

"No, indeed," he answered. "You have taken care of me beautifully."

"Thank you," she said and turned to me.

"I shall be within hearing," she said, "so you will only have to open the door and call me if you need me."

"She's a discerning person," he said. "She knows that these moments of ours together are only too rare. But she could not guess that I wanted to speak to you about Richard."

"Father, dear," I said. "won't you please finish your luncheon before you talk to me about Dicky? I am so worried about you just now that I can't think about anything else."

I took up the coffee pot with fingers that perceptibly trembled and poured out two cups."

"Really," I said mendaciously, as I put one before him and took up the cream pitcher. "I feel as if I ought to have some coffee before hearing anything important. You know how much I depend upon coffee."

"I am not so sure that your coffee shouldn't be spelled 'red herring,'" he told me with a little smile. "However, I yield to your necessity, real or fancied."

I took up my coffee cup and drained it, grateful for its steaming stimulant. I was relieved at my father's acquiescence to my request, but I was torn with the anxiety for Dicky which has been mine for weeks. What was my father's plan for him—or for me?

New Figures Require New Foundations

By MME. QUI VIVE

Distributed By King Features Syndicate Inc.

Bustles! That's just dandy. How are we going to stow them away in the family motor bus? Wasp waists! There's another quaint idea for you. To that the sisterhood will exclaim phooey to the last woman. Or maybe we shouldn't be too sure.

Designers of corsets know which way the fashion winds are blowing. New models show a decided nip-in at the waistline and a slapped-down flatness of the tummy area which is going to make many a good eater grind her teeth when the cream puffs are passed. There will be no lacing, heaven forbid, but if you are going to bounce out at the back by way of peplum, a little girl sash and bow, or a bunch of dry goods shirred into fancy knots, you've got to be slender amidships and that's all there is to it. Not a bad idea. The cream puff gorgers will start to count their calories, look better, feel better.

New corsets and foundation garments fascinate the cash customer who is out stalking a fashionable shape. The too full waistline is upped, actually narrowed and lessened by high-cut girdles. The tummy is tucked away under a front lacing that packs it in snugly; there are innumerable feather-light bones that won't let a bulge loose. All very gratifying.

A woman who is well corseted will not only have a better figure, but she will be reminded that she should stand, sit and walk beautifully. The medical profession can't get up and yowl about these new numbers that act as supports instead of gizzard compressers.

With corsets provided with two-way stretch, there is no hindrance to movement, the body hasn't a boardlike rigidity. The skirt can be form-fitting and there will be no underlying creases. No line where the foundation ends: that has been done away with by means of a snug hem of the finest knitted rubber. Twin front gussets provide ease at the thigh line.

Trump Your Bridge Parties With These Grand Lunches

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

(AP) Feature Service Writer.

It's abotu time to begin brushing up on your culinary tricks so you can spring some ace-high foods on the bridge club this fall.

Let's lead with salads—favorites with most club members because they are always refreshing and aren't so calorie-full as many other foods.

For a sparkling salad, mold peaches, pears and seeded white cherries in ginger ale, stiffered by gelatine. Pass cheese dressing.

Spiced fruits—apricots, pears, peaches, plums—are delectable in lime gelatin and topped with mayonnaise.

Tuna becomes ultra-smart when made into a frozen salad. Put chopped ripe olives, capers and green peppers into a highly seasoned tuna salad. Freeze four hours. Serve on cress and cover with mayonnaise or salad dressing blended with a little catsup.

If you prefer something hot for luncheon, bake some cheese, vegetable or chicken souffle—in individual molds or one large one—and serve it surrounded by a creole or tomato sauce.

Meat or fish Imperial is an extra good entree. Make a heavy, highly seasoned white sauce, add equal quantities of cooked meat or fish and browned mushrooms. Pour into a buttered shallow baking dish and cover generously with buttered crumbs and grated cheese. Bake long enough to heat—about 20 minutes. Pass a relish tray filled wth crisp carrot strips, pickled melon rind and currant jam. Since the calories are carried in the main course, top off with lemon or lime sherbet.

You'll impress your bridge group if you bake a chicken, ham or salmon loaf in ring shape. Unmold and fill with buttered asparagus (canned), surround with celery, pimiento sauce and accompany by pineapple or apricot salad.

Corn or rice-stuffed tomatoes, sauced with creamed green beans, are economical. A tart fruit salad and French dressing helps this cut. Have the dessert angel or sponge cake with hot caramel sauce.

If your club serves just dessert and coffee here's something—bake your best devil's food cake in a ring mold. Cool, split and put in a pineapple-nut filling. Cover with whipped cream. Or frost it with chocolate icing, fill with vanilla ice cream and surround with peaches.

Kitchen Hints

Crisp, tender cookies take blue ribbons for popularity with everyone—including cooks. They are good to eat between meals, they fit into practically any type of menu, and they are no problem to prepare.

Bananas for salads, desserts and appetizers can be kept from darkening when cut, by sprinkling with a little lemon, grapefruit or lime juice. Chill until serving time.

Easy-to-prepare cookies are often the best liked cookies. Butterscotch, chocolate and nut cookies are favorites, and children like them tucked into their school lunch boxes.

Refrigerator cookies are baked as needed so that it is easy to have fresh cookies to serve in a few minutes. The rolls of cookie dough, wrapped in waxed paper, may be kept in the refrigerator for several days. To make dainty tea cookies, shape the dough into rolls about one inch in diameter. Or store a ball of dough, and when ready to bake, make little "marbles" of the dough. These spread on the cookie sheet during baking and make dainty little round cookies.

Only enough flour is added to cookie dough to make it easy to handle. Cookies made from a soft dough are more crisp. Chilling cookie dough in the refrigerator hardens the fat of a soft dough so that it can easily be cut and rolled.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

MECHANICS OF DEALING

Mathematics of distribution can be badly upset by the mechanics of human dealing. The number of outstanding cards of a particular suit should be, according to the law of probabilities, distributed most of the time in certain ways.

But if we take into account that the dealing of the other three hands was done by the same human being, and that the same imperfections of shuffling occurred to those other hands as to ours, we can realize how distributions similar or dissimilar to our own may have been built up in them. That should make us wary about bidding too high on freak hands, since the opponents may have every suit badly distributed against us.

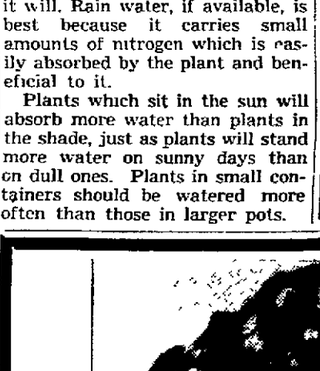
(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

Only one North-South pair got a plus score on this duplicate deal, despite the fact that the cards held by the side seem to make a spade grand slam a certainty. Of course a glimpse at the East-West cards dispels that idea quickly and shows that not even a small slam can be made. As it happened, the pair that did the worst bidding got the best score.

Everybody but one North player started with 2-Spades, that other one with 6-Spades, which West doubled and defeated. In most cases the procedure was North 2-Spades, East 3-Diamonds, South 3-Hearts, North 3-Spades, South either 4-Clubs or 4-Hearts and North 6-Spades, which West doubled and North redoubled.

At one table, over East's 3-Diamonds, South passed and North rebid his spades eventually to land in 6-Spades. At another South doubled the 3-Diamonds and North went on with spades to grand slam. The North-South top came where North doubled 3-Diamonds. South left it in and it was beaten two tricks.

Today's Garden-Graph



Irrigating the indoor garden

Although rain and dew usually provide ample moisture for plants growing out of doors, moisture must be provided for plants growing indoors. Mere watering, however, is not enough for house plants since they often suffer from too dry an atmosphere as well as from actual lack of watering.

The rule for watering plants indoors is the same as for those growing out of doors; that is, water thoroughly. Thorough watering of house plants at regular intervals is much more satisfactory than a light daily sprinkling. A good method is to plunge the pot to its rim in a pan of water, as shown in the Garden-Graph, and allow it to soak up all the water it will. Rain water, if available, is best because it carries small amounts of nitrogen which is easily absorbed by the plant and beneficial to it.

Plants which sit in the sun will absorb more water than plants in the shade, just as plants will stand more water on sunny days than on dull ones. Plants in small containers should be watered more often than those in larger pots.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, September 19.

According to the astral indications, this may be a dubious day, with affairs moving in a rut and difficult to accelerate into action despite strenuous application of force. Hostility may be aroused by belligerent attempts to remove obstacles, or there may be very stubborn, frustrating circumstances. More might be gained by tact, diplomacy or strategem. In any case postponements may be advantageous.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a rather doubtful year, with impediments and obstacles forestalling efforts at progressiveness. Aggressive actions may provoke disagreeable opposition at a time when more diplomatic approach or finesse might be effective. Because of frustrating situations, it might be well to postpone certain moves until there are more propitious astral signs.

A child born on this day may be deep and studious but also slow and cautious or suspicious. It may be practical and industrious, but its mental grasp may be too confused for conspicuous initiative.

Tomorrow's Problem.

By IRENE OBERLIN
Home Service Director of the Ohio Public Service Company.

What is that spicy odor in the air? Not chili sauce already? Yes, and this is the season for canning and preserving so today we suggest you read over some of these tangy recipes and then get the old preserving kettle out for a session.

Scald and skin motatoes, cook 15 minutes. Drain off half the juice. Chop other vegetables, add other ingredients and cook 1½ to 2¼ hours.

Green Tomato Relish.

Combine 1 peck green tomatoes, groud with 1 cup salt, let drain in cloth bag overnight. In the morning chop 1 medium size head cabbage, 6 green peppers, 5 red peppers and 6 onions, mix all vegetables and add—

Peach Shortcake Tasty Dish

Peach shortcake is universally popular.

OLD-FASHIONED PEACH SHORTCAKE—1½ cups sifted flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ cup shortening, 1 egg, well-beaten, 6 tablespoons milk, soft butter, sugar sliced peaches, cream. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening. add egg and milk to make a soft dough. Beat 30 seconds, turn on lightly floured board, roll to ¼-inch thickness, cut in two rounds. Brush one round of dough with soft butter, place remaining round on top. Bake in very hot oven, 450 degrees F., 15 to 18 minutes. Split layers, spread split sides with butter. Surplus Foods Low In Cost; Help Keep Budgets In Shape

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

ALL homemakers—whether or not eligible for food stamps—will find it profitable to keep a budget-paring eye on the government's list of surplus foods.

Recent additions to the list include such staples as cabbage, rice, peaches, pears, tomatoes, onions and green peas.

American standbys on the list for some time are butter, eggs, corn meal, dried prunes, dry beans and wheat and whole-wheat flours

These surplus foods are not only plentiful and low in price but are also topnotch health builders and can be used in a wide variety of tasty dishes.

Bear these points in mind when canning tomatoes: Peel them with a stainless steel or silver-plated knife. Never cook or let tomatoes stand in brass, copper or galvanized iron utensils. Put them up as soon as possible after the tomatoes are picked. The uses of tomatoes and tomato juice are almost countless. The juices work up into delicious ices, salads, appetizers, sauces, beverages and soups. And tomatoes go well with other foods. They give color and flavor to many dishes.

* * *

Dry beans are a good source of energy at a small cost. Wash the beans thoroughly in lots of cold water, cover by 3 inches with fresh cold water and soak them over night. Let the beans simmer until they become tender. Add salt during the very last part of the cooking. Beans need pepping up. Green peppers, celery, onions, pimientos, cheese, pickles and olives can do it. Mix in some of them with cooked beans.

* * *

Substitute beans for bread crumbs in meat and fish loaves, stuffings and escalloped foods. Use them for filling green peppers, tomatoes and small squash. And of course beans come into their own when baked in the Boston manner.

* * *

Vary menus by using rice in place of potatoes. Rice timbales or molds, covered with a cheese, tomato, mushroom, hard-cooked egg or olive sauce present a low-cost meal with real personality. Use rice also for stuffing meats and fowls.

* * *

Dried prunes keep easily. A valuable source of vitamin A, iron and acid, prunes are a food with a high rating and low cost. Wash prunes in hot water. Cover by 2 inches with more hot water and soak an hour or longer. Cover them and let them simmer 40 minutes — until the prunes are very tender. A little salt and lemon juice and rind improves all prune combinations.

Chilled and covered with orange juice, stewed prunes make an excellent appetizer for any meal. They make an excellent dessert with peaches, pears, cherries, apricots or boiled rice. Stuffed with pineapple, cheese, celery, nuts or peanut butter, prunes make a fine salad. Spiced, they lend a piquant touch to cold or hot meat, or to fish or fowl platters. Sweetened with a little brown sugar and lightly spiced, prunes go into a delicious cobbler, tart, whip, souffle, upside down cake, pie or pastry roll. They make a different topping for baked, steamed or gelatine desserts.

* * *

The large 1939 peach crop gives the housewife a fine chance to employ the fruit to the fullest. Peaches are ideal for filling the preserve shelves. Spiced, preserved, or jammed, they are eagerly received everywhere.

Renfro Hillbillies Return Saturday to Madison Stage

Mansfield theatergoers will be entertained Saturday by the same talent that entertained the king and queen of England when they were in America early in the summer. The Renfro Valley Barn Dance will appear at the Madison theater with Lily May and the Coon Creek Girls.

It was Lily May and the Kentucky girls from Pinchemtight Holler who were selected by President and Mrs. Roosevelt as the most authentic and entertaining hill singers in the country, to headline a "typical American" program at the White House for their English majesties.

This will be the second time that the Renfro troupe which is heard every Saturday night over WLW, has appeared in Mansfield, and the second time it has made its regular nation-wide broadcast from the Madison theater stage.

The group is still headed by Ramblin' Red Foley, who was here with the company more than a year ago but in recent months has been with another program.

A'nt Idy Harper, Little Clifford, Whitey Ford (The Duke of Paducka), Uncle Juney, Slim Miller's Kentucky Corncrakers, and the Girls of The Golden West, are all headliners in the Renfro group.

The broadcast will be made at 7 p. m.

To insure tenderness in cookies, stir the dough or batter only enough to mix the ingredients when adding the flour. Overmixing develops the gluten in the flour and tends to make the cookies hard instead of crispy tender.

THEATERS

Gets Four Stars.

"The Wizard of Oz" gets a four-star rating this week in one of the national magazines which rates pictures by the star system; and the four stars mean "exceptional." The film version of the Frank Baum story is not, like the stage version, a musical comedy in the accepted sense, but a musical fantasy made in brilliant colors. Judy Garland, young singing star, heads an attractive cast. The picture is being shown at the Ohio.

Victim of Blackmail.

Although Edward G. Robinson has been a prisoner in a number of his pictures, "Blackmail" is the first in which he has been an innocent victim of circumstances. The story is built on his life after he escapes and sets up a new life under a different name, marries a lovely girl and becomes a father. Betrayed by his picture in a newsreel to an old enemy, he becomes the victim of blackmail. Ruth Hussey supports the star in this film which is at the Madison.

Youngest Star.

Sandy, the newest baby star, leaped into the public heart with her first picture, "East Side of Heaven," in which she played a boy baby in Bing Crosby's picture. Sandy, although unable to talk, held her own with such picture stealers as Crosby, Joan Blondell and Mischa Auer. Since then she has played in several pictures. "East Side of Heaven" is the Ritz attraction for three days, starting tomorrow, with Isa Miranda and Ray Milland in "Hotel Imperial."

Joan Crawford Starred.

Joan Crawford and James Stewart in "The Ice Follies of 1939" is one of the two attractions billed for the Majestic for the middle of the week, starting Tuesday. Lew Ayers and Lewis Stone are also seen in support of Miss Crawford. The second film is "Pygmalion," George Bernard Shaw's brilliant comedy of a man who created a lovely woman out of an ignorant flower girl and then fell in love with her. Leslie Howard and Wendy Hiller are featured.

Story From Life.

Phil Regan and Jean Parker are a romantic team in "She Married a Cop," a Park theater attraction. Miss Parker is a radio studio worker who is looking for a new voice when she encounters Regan, a handsome cop on the beat. From there on it's Regan's own story, for he was a "handsome cop" in Brooklyn when he was discovered by a radio scout and later became a radio star. The other film on the double bill is a revival of "The Lost Squadron" with Richard Dix, Mary Astor and Joel McCrea.

Makes 'Final' Offer of $20,000 On West Fourth Project

COUNTY TELLS STATE IT CAN'T AFFORD MORE

Offered $10,000 Originally for Grade Program While State Asked for $100,000.

Richland county commissioners today made a "final" offer of $20,000 as the county's share of the cost of a proposed $600,000 grade elimination project on West Fourth street road.

The offer was boosted from $10,000, but it still falls far short of the $100,000 which the state highway department had requested as the county's share of the project.

When informed of the commissioners' decision, Murray D. Shaffer, Ashland division state highway engineer, asserted that, "it will be up to the department's Columbus office to determine whether the project can be financed on that basis."

Shaffer added that since the department at first had requested $100,000, an offer of at least $55,000 "might be more favorably received."

The state previously had reduced its request to about $60,000 when the commissioners said $100,000 was out of the question.

Say Department 'Broke.'

In explaining their position, commissioners pointed out that the county road department is virtually "broke," and is unable to provide more than $20,000 without issuing bonds.

"We could not think of bonding the county for the amount asked without a vote of the people," the commissioners' letter to Shaffer said.

Commissioners also pointed out that the county probably will have to build two bridges in Mansfield within the next year and that expenditure would take most of the available funds. The bridges cited are on North Main street and Bowman street.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the commissioners, also pointed out that the county recently completed a $70,000 PWA resurfacing project which depleted the road fund temporarily.

Mansfield city council has taken steps to set up an $18,000 fund as the city's share of the project on West Fourth street.

The state's proposal calls for an under pass at the Erie tracks on route 30N west of the city and an overhead project at the B. & O. tracks. The project would eliminate a dangerous curve at the city limits.

Columbus Police Arrest Delaware County Sheriff

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—On his way to the Franklin county jail to get two men out of custody, Sheriff Merton F. Pinney, 51, of Delaware county, was arrested early today on a speeding charge by Columbus police.

Taken to the Central police station, Sheriff Pinney was released on a recognizance bond to appear in traffic court Wednesday.

Motorcycle Patrolman Stanley Doods, who arrested the sheriff, said he chased him at a speed of 62 miles an hour.

"I was going a little fast, but at that hour of the morning there was no traffic. One of the fellows I was going after is a school bus driver and had to go after the children at 7 a. m.," Sheriff Pinney said.

"When the officer stopped me, I showed him my badge and told him who I was. I said that if a member of another law enforcement agency was stopped for a minor traffic violation in Delaware county, he would be treated courteously and not hauled into jail," Pinney said.

MRS. BOWMAN, 85, STRICKEN SUNDAY

Lifelong Loudonville Resident Dies At Home of Daughter.

LOUDONVILLE — Mrs. Emma Bowman, 85, a lifelong resident of this vicinity, died Sunday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Workman.

Surviving are four sons, Charles, Guy and Cleveland of Loudonville and Rufus of Alliance, a daughter, Mrs. Workman, 19 grandchildren and five great grandchildren. Mrs. Bowman was a member of the Baptist church.

The body was removed to the Swank funeral home where services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday with Rev. David Railsback, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating. Burial will be in Loudonville cemetery.

SUCCUMBS IN GARAGE

BUCYRUS—Robert A. Hakes, 62, of Lorain, died here Saturday night in a downtown garage of a heart attack. Mr. Hakes and his wife, who had just returned from a trip to Florida, had stopped here to visit his sister, Mrs. Clarence Ledyard. The body was returned to Lorain for funeral services.

An opportunity to keep up on current subjects is offered blind persons of Mansfield through a new service at the Public library. Several copies of the Reader's Digest printed in Braille type have been purchased and are available for circulation. If there is sufficient demand for them by the blind, other copies will be added, Miss Lois MacKellar, librarian, said.

The fourth hole-in-one of the Mansfield golf season and the first shot at the Coolridge course this year was produced by Charles E. (Vert) Hunter, jr., of 87 Park avenue west, Saturday. Young Hunter, a student at Western Reserve university, entered golf's hall of fame on the 236-yard No. 3 hole. He used a driver. Witnesses to the fact were his father, Dr. C. E. Hunter, sr., and a caddie, Louis Nameth. Joe Kleshinski and Oscar Frantz were the ace shooters at Possum Run while J. C. Gorman turned the trick at Westbrook Country club.

There was a bit of irony in the Mansfield high school pupils' invasion of the courthouse the other night while they were parading through the city to celebrate the opening of the football season. At the courthouse they interrupted a citizenship class in which Miss Henrietta Frank was teaching foreign-born residents how to behave in America. "The noisy pupils at least gave them an example of how not to behave," a critical courthouse worker commented.

Virginia Davis, 15, lost a small pin this morning on the way to Senior High school, and the Queen of England couldn't feel any worse if she had lost the Kohinoor diamond. Because the pin—a gold wreath with eight colored bars—represents eight years of Sunday school attendance at First Presbyterian church, without missing a single Sunday. And this coming Sunday, a ninth bar was to have been added, for Virginia has completed the ninth year of her remarkable Sunday school record. She lost the pin either on West Fourth between her home at 207 Penn avenue and the high school, or else in the building itself.

JALOPPY PLOWS THROUGH FENCE AT FAIRGROUND

Board Strikes Boy, 2, and His Grandmother; Wind Prevents 'Bat Man's' Plunge.

A crowd estimated at 10,000, one of the largest in its history, jammed the county fairground yesterday to witness a "thrill circus" sponsored by Delano lodge of steel workers.

Two persons were injured during the afternoon's racing program when a jaloppy racing car ploughed through a fence.

James Etzwiler, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Etzwiler, 61 Reba avenue, and his grandmother, Mrs. Edith Etzwiler, 11½ East Temple court, were hurt, neither seriously, during the final jaloppy race, the Ohio Sweepstakes.

Witnesses said Mrs Etzwiler and the boy were struck by a section of the fence as they turned to leave the track. They were taken to the General hospital and treated for abrasions and bruises.

The accident occurred when a machine driven by Harold Mayer was involved in a collision with three other cars on a curve. One of the other machines struck a light pole on the infield side of the course.

A strong wind prevented Capt. Gary Garrison from performing his scheduled plunge from an altitude of 10,000 feet in which he uses only a pair of giant bat wings to glide to the ground.

Garrison made a parachute jump, however, the wind carrying him past the fairground to the vicinity of Howard street, nearly a half mile away, where he landed in an orchard. He was bruised and cut about the face.

Doc Hayden, Cedar Rapids, Ia., American Automobile association acted as started for the race events in which 17 local drivers were entered.

Jimmy Au of Mansfield was the winner of the Ohio sweepstakes, the feature event on the program. His brother, Emerson, was runner-up in the 25-lap affair, which was marred by the accident, with Claire Touly, also of Mansfield, third.

In the shorter races, Harold Meyer, Jimmy Au, Bill Roach, Claire Touly and Phil Hergatt were winners.

Proceeds of the afternoon's show will go into the Delano lodge Christmas fund for children of the steel workers.

You Can Get Very Best In Red Baiting From a Pair of Excitable Reds

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—As a pioneer red-baiter, and the first, I hope to advocate the practice of baiting Reds back, I point with pleasure to the testimony given before the Dies committee recently by Ben Gitlow and Earl Browder, past and present general secretaries of the Communist party in the United States. Gitlow, who is a backslid Bolo, and Browder, his successor, admitted that they and other party members had used false passports, and Browder refused to give particulars as to his own offense on the ground that in doing so he might incriminate himself.

Gitlow also testified that during his term as general secretary of the party, from which post he was removed by Josef Stalin personally, the Russian G. P. U., or secret police, operated plants in Moscow and Berlin in which the Communists counterfeited not only American passports but American money as well.

The counterfeit money was passed in the United States in exchange for Good American money which was used to finance the five-year plan, and, for lagnappe.

Gitlow added that the Communist parties of several countries, including this one, diverted or, in a shorter and uglier but more fitting word, stole a fund of $1,000,000 which Americans contributed in 1922 to feed starving victims of the Russian famine who, presumably, went right on starving.

As a kickout Gitlow, who once had the effrontery to run for vice president of the United States, might be regarded as a prejudiced witness against the Communist party, and further to discredit him. Browder might point out that anyone who would travel on a false passport is not to be believed under oath, inasmuch as it is customary for persons receiving passports to swear to their applications. Gitlow, on his part, could, and doubtless does, return the compliment, and that gives us two successive chiefs of the Communist movement in the United States who, by their own admissions, place themselves beyond belief.

It turns out that the two most effective red-baiters of the time are Reds themselves, although Gitlow has since repudiated Communism and is now flapping around in space. As to whether it will ever be possible for him to get right with the people of the country against which he was a willing conspirator or accomplice in the service of a foreign dictator, there would seem to be no question. Such a record as he confessed to will inspire something very unlike confidence, no matter what beliefs or purposes he may profess from now on.

Until a couple of years ago Red-baiting was regarded as an uncouth form of political criticism, and the Reds who encouraged the growth of this superstition among the double-dome liberals received the benefit of a fastidious and artificial verboten.

The Reds themselves, while deeply engaged in civic villany, were ever alert to point out the danger that Red-baiters, in baiting Reds, might also bait virtuous political defectives and perverts who were not actually Reds but merely admired Moscow as the greatest experiment ever made for human betterment.

Those who delighted to bait Reds, knowing the treacherous nature of the breed from observation of their methods in American labor unions, argued that these fellow-travelers had no right to interpose themselves as shields and deserved to be dealt with under the single standard of morality which holds that in a raid on a brothel the customers should be tossed into the wagon along with the talent.

The police are familiar with the explanation that gents taken in such surroundings were just studying conditions over a polite bottle of beer, and those who baited Reds were equally tired of the story that these political family men had to run with conspirators against the American nation and join their subversive orgies in order to learn how they happened to get into that life.

In either case a man takes a chance that his name will get into the papers, and that not only he but any labor organization or semi-political group which he happens to represent will be judged by the company he keeps.

* * *

The bitterest Red-baiters, oddly enough, are the Reds themselves. They are always splitting into bitter, vicious groups, and for the best in Red-baiting it is necessary to read their own Red-baiting Red publications or, by rare luck, set a couple of them against each other on the stand, like cats hung over a clothesline tied together by their tails.

10,000 ROLL CALL QUOTA SET AS RED CROSS NAMES CHAIRMAN

The Richland County chapter of the Red Cross today announced the appointment of Leland W. Birch, 591 Park avenue west, as chairman of the 1940 Roll Call campaign.

At the same time it was revealed that the chapter has been assigned a quota of 10,000 members for the drive which opens on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, and closes Nov. 30. The quota is an an increase of 2,000 over last year. The Richland chapter however, which has been one of the Roll Call leaders in the state for several years, went far over the top by enlisting 9,800 members in 1938.

Birch, who is a commercial engineer at the Ohio Brass company, has been a member of the chapter executive board for the past year, serving as a sub-chairman on the disaster set-up.

One of his first duties as Roll Call chairman will be to preside tomorrow morning over the first session of the Roll Call chairmen camp for this district which will be held at Westbrook Country club. About 125 Roll Call workers from 20 chapters will be in attendance.

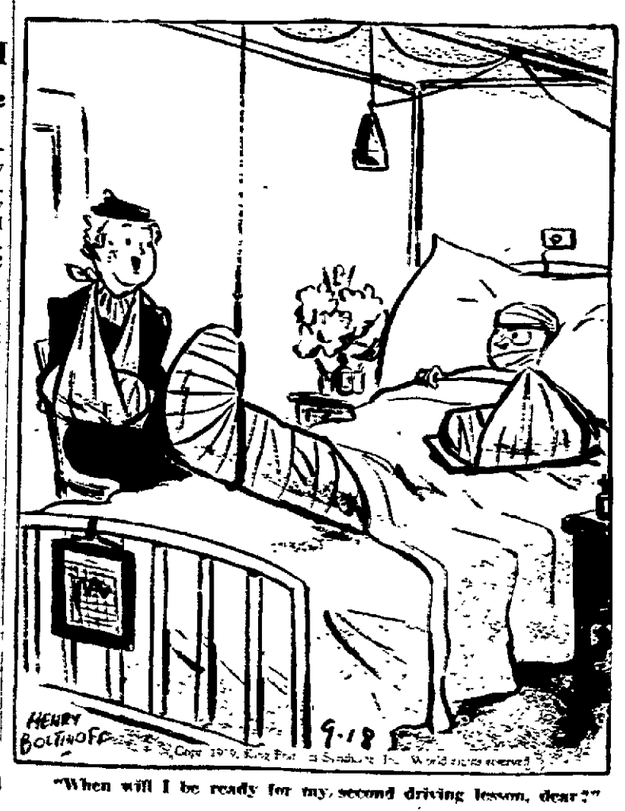
LAFF-A-DAY



"When will I be ready for my second driving lesson, dear?"

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

* * * *

HOLLYWOOD—If this is how "the women" really act and talk when they're alone, it's time Us Fellas got together and organized a mutual protective association.

This elaborate version of the stage hit hasn't a male on view, but it's loaded with Metro's choicest feminine glamor and—as the exploitation department coyly suggests—it's all about men. And boy, howdy! Are we something!

"The Women" is ultra-sophisticated, frank, daring, and quite often, shocking. It's clever, too, the way the characters are introduced as the creatures of the animal world their personalities suggest: Norma Shearer as the doe, Joan Crawford as the hunting tiger, Rosalind Russell as the sleek black cat, little Virginia Weidler as the fawn, Joan Fontaine as the lamb, as so on.

The picture opens in a Metro conception of a beauty salon (and maybe there are some like it somewhere) which gives the dear spoiled darlings of the richer crust all manner of treatments—including free gossip of the backfence variety. When Sylvia (Russell) hears from her manicurist that Stephen Haines is stepping out on Mary - and with a perfume counter girl named Crystal Allen (Crawford)—the story gets under way.

Miss Shearer is Mary, a nice young wife much in love with her husband and daughter (Weidler) and the story is of her battle to save her marriage despite efforts of her gossiping friends to kill it. Gossip wins out, and Mary goes to Reno. Stephen (wonder what that guy looks like!) marries Crystal, who runs true to form and annexes another boy friend in a year and a half. Then Mary, when she learns how badly things are going, chucks her pride and fights for the guy with the weapons of her feline friends.

At the fade-out she's rushing, arms extended, toward Stephen, who's behind the camera somewhere and has never shown his face. Thus Director Cukor completes his manless tour de force, generally effective but skiddy at times—such as the sequences of the Stephen-Mary quarrel relayed entirely through dialogue between maid and cook downstairs.

The comedy is brittle, sometimes a little overplayed for effect, but the Shearer performance evokes sympathy, which is abetted by the superb little Weidler child.

The first night audience roared, chuckled, and occasionally gasped. Sample gasp: Miss Crawford's line to the assembled women: "There's a name for all of you, but in high society they don't use it—except around kennels."

The acting is exceptional, with Miss Russell's the most flashy and hence most likely to be acclaimed. Also excellent the Crawford delineation of a frank wench; Joan Fontaine as a simple romantic young wife; Goddard as a chorine with a foxy philosophy; Misses Boland, Povah, Watson and Main.

Tygers Face Stiff Test In Massillon Saturday

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL,
News-Journal Sports Editor.

SATURDAY marked the start of the 10th year for yours truly as a reporter of Mansfield high school football games.

It was also the first time we've ever seen the Tygers go into battle without J. Russell Murphy as head coach, and there was little evidence Saturday of any marked difference in the systems employed by Paul Snyder and his predecessor.

While Snyder has indicated in practice sessions that he is more air-minded than Murphy, the new Tyger strategist has developed one of the slickest running attacks witnessed at Stadium field in several years.

Not too much enthusiasm over this year's prospects should be built up from Saturday's lop-sided 26 to 0 victory over Akron West, but the Tygers did show promise. They may develop into one of the stronger Mansfield teams of recent years.

The opening game did not provide the Tygers with a decent test as the foe was the weakest Akron West eleven to parade at the Bengal lair since the inception of the rivalry in 1936.

1930 VICTORY SCORED OVER DANVILLE

THIS writer's first glimpse of a Mansfield high school team was in the fall of 1930. Danville was the opponent, if you remember, and the Tygers hung up a 56 to 12 victory. The opening lineup included McMullen, Waltz, Ohle, Fichter, Brooks, Heiser, Miller, Fisch, Sweeterman, Matthews and Zivkoff. Brooks and Matthews were co-captains.

The next year the Tygers administered a 40 to 15 whipping to Garrettsville, and produced one of the greatest records ever fashioned by a Mansifeld high team. It was Murphy's "dream" team. The Tygers opened the campaign with a lineup consisting of Capt. Fichter, McMullen, Fredericks, Ohle, Masni, Smith, Luckie, Fisch, Zivkoff, Selby and McKinney.

In 1932, Mansfield trounced Sidney, 25 to 0, in the inaugural featured by the ball carrying of Gene Brandon. Madison gave the Tygers a major scare at the next season opener when it led Mansfield 6 to 0 at the half. Mansifeld won 33 to 6.

The only lid lifter the Tygers have failed to win in the last 10 years was with Painesville in 1934, the game ending in a 6 to 6 tie. Dick Olin averted defeat in the final period by returning a punt for a touchdown.

* * *

Mansfield walloped Madison, 38 to 6, in 1935, and won over Akron West the next year. Johnny Hallabrin's three touchdowns highlighted the Tygers' 19 to 14 win over West in the 1937 debut. Bobby Nash's forward passing for the Akron team will recall this game to many. The Tygers trimmed the Cowboys, 7 to 0, last year, you remember.

* * *

But to get back to the 1939 season. All of the Tygers' future foes which opened their seasons were returned victors last week. Massillon defeated Cleveland Cathedral Latin, 40 to 13; New Philadelphia walloped Brookfield, 33 to 0; Sandusky routed Cleveland Collinwood, 33 to 6; Akron Kenmore edged Dover, 7 to 6; Ashland blanked Willard, 14 to 0; Canton McKinley outpointed Cleveland Lincoln, 7 to 2, and Shelby whipped Norwalk, 7 to 0. Cambridge was the only foe on the schedule which did not play over the week-end.

DUGGER MAKES DEBUT WITH CANTON McKINLEY

A NAME familiar to Tyger followers appeared in the Canton McKinley lineup Saturday. You, of course, remember Jack Dugger, who held down an end berth on the 1937 and 1938 Mansfield high elevens. Dugger is at Canton now and, apparently, doing a good job of end playing for the Bulldogs. He converted the extra point in Canton's 7 to 2 win over Lincoln.

* * *

Perhaps you noticed in the Sunday sheets that Mansfield's Johnny Hallabrin produced another fine performance in his bid for recognition at Ohio State in a practice game Saturday. Johnny cavorted with an all-sophomore team against the second-stringers and scored a touchdown on a pass in a 12 to 0 victory.

Resume Work On Blocking

Bucks Show Weakness in Practice Games.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Blocking and tackling, the raw ingredients of modern football success, was emphasized today as the Ohio State gridiron forces resumed training in more seasonal pigskin weather.

Coach Francis Schmidt displayed sharp dissatisfaction with the deportment of his Buckeyes in blocking and tackling tactics during a 45-minute scrimmage Saturday.

Four touchdowns were scored—two by a first string eleven and one each by two reserve teams.

The principal bit of encouraging news came off the gridiron when it was announced that Jim Strausbaugh, Chilicothe, fleet halfback, would be definitely eligible for competition this fall. Strausbaugh worked in the so-called first team backfield with Frank Zadworney at right halfback; Jim Langhurst at fullback, and Don Scott at quarterback. All are veterans.

O'Brien Second Best In Duel

Baugh's Pass Beats Phils In Pro Tussle.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Little Davie O'Brien must await another day—possibly next Sunday to successfully portray his David vs. Goliath role.

The former Texas Christian quarterback made his professional league football debut yesterday at Philadelphia and came off second best in his passing duel with the Washington's Redskins' "Goliath" —Slingin Sammy Baugh, himself a former T. C. U. star.

It was a scoreless battle for three periods. Then Baugh hurled a 30 yard pass to Charlie Malone for a touchdown and a 7 to 0 triumph.

In yesterday's other game, Green Bay's Packers used their vaunted passing attack to hand Chicago's Cardinals their second straight defeat, 14 to 10. Arnold Herber passed 26 yeads to Carl Mulleneau for the first Packer score and a 44 yard throw to Don Hutson set the stage for the second.

CANTON ADDS PLAYOFF TITLE TO LEAGUE FLAG

CANTON —(AP)— Double laurels, first the pennant and now the league championship, completed the Canton Terriers conquest of the Mil-Atlantic league fortunes today.

The final step to the glory seat came last night when the Terriers whipped Springfield's Indians, 5 to 2, for the fourth straight time in the league championship series. Springfield took the first game of the playoff.

Louis 6 to 1 Choice Over 'Bicycle Bob'

Champion Reported in 'Excellent Condition' for Title Defense Wednesday.

By JACK CUDDY

DETROIT—(U.P.)—In "excellent condition," heavyweight champion Joe Louis today became a 6-1 favorite over "Bicycle Bob" Pastor, in their return match at Briggs stadium Wednesday night.

Dr. Chester Ames, the Bomber's personal physician, and Dr. B. W. Clark of the boxing commission agreed that Jolting Joe had recovered completely from his cold of last week and that he was in shape to deliver a kayo rather than occupy a hospital cot.

These two reports should be reassuring to the thousands of fight fans who heard rumors over the week-end that: (1) Champion Joe was in an oxygen tent like Tony Galento last autumn; (2) He had a higher fever than a victim of one of those Amazon malaria mosquitos; and (3) That the fight was called.

* * *

The Detroit dynamiter was going through his last sparring session of four rounds today at the Northville fair grounds, determined to score a quick knockout over Pastor, who fled from him for 10 rounds two years ago at Madison Square Garden.

Louis and his trainer, Jack Blackburn, and his co-managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black, can't forget that Patsor's retreat that night made Louis look like a Palooka.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who arrived yesterday with a 20-man brigade of New York boxing writers—straight from the dismal small-gate Galento-Nova butchery—was smiling all over the hotel. Uncle Mike, with this broad grin, risked a droppage of his chain store teeth, because his box office men informed him that the advance ticket sale already had exceeded $300,000.

* * *

This was twice as much money as this patricular engagement would have drawn in any other city and Uncle Mike punctuated this heartening paragraph by adding, "the fight will gross close to $600,000."

Boots Chance To Pass Sox

Cleveland Splits With A's; Allen Due Today.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians, who kicked away a chance to go into third place in the American league yesterday when they split a doubleheader with the Philadelphia Athletics, met the A's again today in the final game of the summer between the two teams.

Johnny Allen, who has had difficulty lately in getting past the sixth inning, was Manager Oscar Vitt's mound choice, probably opposing Lynn Nelson. The Tribe is still just half a game behind the Chicago White Sox who broke even with Botson in a twin bill.

Five errors in the book and several of omission cost Bob Feller a 4 to 2 defeat in the opener yesterday, a game he might have won 2 to 1 with big league support afield. Three of the six hits chalked against Feller were soft flies which the Indians neglected to catch.

Feller fanned seven batters bringing his season's total to 224. George Caster, who relieved Rookie Lester Crabb in the seventh, got credit for the win.

The Indians had a field day in the second tilt, winning 18 to 5 on 17 hits, nine bases on balls, and five Philadelphia errors. Southpaw Al Milnar got the benefit of the Tribal scoring spree to register his 12th win of the season. Buck Ross started and lost for the A's.

LIEDERKRANZ CLUB, LED BY SELBY, WINS PAIR

Led by Harold Selby, who tumbled 612 sticks, the Liederkranz club came through with a 2776 total to take two games from Port Clinton in an opening N. C. O. Traveling league match at Port Clinton Sunday. The Mansfield team closed its string with a 995 game.

Trounce Akron In Opener, 26-0

Logan, Hershey, Smith and Horvath Stand Out For Mansfield in 1939 Lid Lifter Before 3,000.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

PROF. PAUL SNYDER handed out the grade cards to his Tygers today as they assembled at Stadium field to prepare for their second test of the new football season.

Many passed the first examination with flying colors, a few fell just short of a 100 rating and a number of others hurdled the initial test by the "skin of their teeth," so to speak.

But the class as a whole received a very creditable mark, and the head of the Mansfield high school football department and the assistant professors, Vern Hoffman and Harry Mehock, were rather pleased with the way the students handled their first assignment.

This week the Tygers will confine their studies to a pr[illegible] yet unsolved at Mansfield high school. It will deal with Massillon, Ohio's No. 1 gridiron power.

Saturday will mark the fourth time that this subject has been assigned to a Tyger class, and Snyder hopes this year's group will go a much better job at the test to be given in Massillon Saturday than its predecessors.

Massillon's conquest of Cleveland Cathedral Latin by a 40 to 13 margin last week indicates that the Stark countians have lost none of their power.

While victory hopes for Saturday may appear drab, Snyder is not easily disillusioned. However, the new Tyger mentor realizes that his charges have anything but a sociable lawn party awaiting them.

The Tygers' 26 to 0 victory over a none-too-strong Akron West contingent at Stadium field Saturday before 3,000 onlookers convinced Snyder that the club packs promise.

But Snyder has been in the football wars long enough to understand that the Tygers must improve their play to stand a chance with the defending Ohio scholastic champions.

Tygers Prove They Gain On Ground

SNYDER'S young men proved quite satisfactorily Saturday that they can run, but they provided no proof that they can throw.

Just what they possess in the way of an aerial game will probably be determined next Saturday as there was no particular reason for them to go into the air in their initial game last week because of their ability to obtain all the points they needed from the ground.

Hershey

Mansfield also showed up stronger defensively than anticipated, but whether the Tygers' play in this department was due more to the weakness of the Akron running game than to their own strength will also be learned Saturday.

The visiting Cowboys tossed 25 running plays against the Tygers' line Saturday, and the Bengals threw them for losses 10 times and refused to yield an inch on four other occasions.

Unable to register a single first down while the Tygers were marking up 11, Russ Beichley's gridmen gained only 44 yards from scrimmage. They lost 39 yards for a net gain of only five yards.

Akron threw only two passes and one was intercepted by Martin Henke.

The Tygers gained only 23 yards from three pass completions, and this figure cannot be snuffed at as they attempted only five throws.

Snyder's boys made their best offensive showing on the ground. They accumulated 312 yards with their tricky running, and might have increased this total considerable had Snyder not been so free with substitutions. Four complete teams involving more than 40 players saw service in the inaugural that was spoiled by a first quarter rain, which only broke the sweltering heat for a few minutes.

Joe Logan, who confined all of his athletic activities at the school to track until this year; Howard Hershey and Marshall Smith were the chief Mansfield ground gainers.

Alex Radovich, Adam Brandt and Bill Doolittle fashioned neat ball carrying jobs in reserve roles. Brandt, for instance, rolled up one of the longest gains of the day late in the final period when he lugged the leather from midfield to Akron's 34 to set up the final scoring play.

Logan scored the first two touchdowns and Ed Kinkel and Smith produced the other two.

* * *

Hershey's Long Punt Helps Tygers Score

MANSFIELD may not be as weak in the kicking department as the pre-season workouts indicated. Jim LeMunyon, John Pfahler and Hershey, a left-footed punter, handled this assignment in expert fashion.

It was Hershey's 56-yard punt in the first period which was instrumental in setting the stage for the first Mansfield touchdown in the second period.

Stand-outs in the Mansfield line were Capt. Mike Horvath, who called the signals from a tackle post; Russ Beer, Dave Prion, Paul Sauder, Dick Weaver, Dick White and Martin Henke, moved from the backfield to a guard position.

Smith

The Tygers were guilty of many rule infractions Saturday, but this was probably due more to over-anxiousness than anything else. They were penalized a total of 90 yards, which included four 15-yard fouls.

The smaller penalties were caused by linemen moving into motion on the wrong signal count, Snyder said.

Only one fumble was committed in the ball game, and this was remarkable considering the heat which caused perspiring hands. Smith was guilty of the lone bobble and it did not prove costly as he retrieved it.

A bad punt by the Akron booter after Hershey's kick had drove the Cowboys deep into their own territory set up the first touchdown. A feature of the 44-yard touchdown drive was a 21-yard run by Smith, who carried the pigskin to the four.

Logan lugged the leather into pay regions on a wide sweep to his right after Bob Lantz carried it to the one. LeMunyon added the extra point from placement.

Cross Three Times In Final Half

DENIED several other scoring opportunities in the first half because of penalties, the Tygers did not tally again until late in the third period.

Then Logan raced across the final stripe on a fake reverse from the Akron 28. That football togs do not hinder his running was proven when he raced through the middle of the secondary without having a hand placed on him.

A 13-yard run by Logan and one of 17 by Hershey were factors in this successful march from the Tygers' 40.

The final touchdowns came in rapid succession in the fourth quarter. Kinkel bucked over from the one after Doolittle's 16-yard pass to Radovich had placed the ball on the four, and Smith climaxed the scoring when he dashed through tackle for 15 yards. Doolittle's kick produced a point after Kinkel's touchdown.

Akron West never invaded Mansfield territory once. The nearest it came to Tyger land was when a Mansfield penalty placed the ball on the 50-yard line in the third period.

Conference Games Headline College Program

By RUSSELL FULLER

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Eleven Ohio college football squads unlimbered heavy artillery today, firing a few preliminary salvos before venturing forth Friday and Saturday into skirmishes heralding the pigskin sport's 1939 arrival across a wide front.

* * *

With summer's unwelcome encore seemingly over, coaches drove their gridders through heavy scrimmage sessions, endeavoring to make up for time lost last week when the heat, with an all inclusive flying tackle, interrupted practice chores.

Headlining Friday's card were two Ohio conference tussles. Under the lights, Ohio northern was matched against Findlay in the latter city while Otterbein was pitted against Muskingum in a nocturnal encounter in New Concord.

In other Friday night tilts Mt. Union was slated to play host to Albion of Michigan and Youngstown, winner in its opening game against Geneva, was to travel to Charleston, W. Va., for a bout with Morris-Harvey.

Saturday afternoon two erstwhile Buckeye conference schools get their first taste of combat. Ohio Wesleyan's Bishops stay at home for a date with Alma of Michigan. In Athens, Ohio university, probably one of the outstanding teams in the state, lifts the lid with Western Kentucky as the opponent.

Doc Spears' Toledo Rockets had a worthy foe in Valparaiso of Indiana. Bluffton and Kenyon were to meet in Lima Saturday night.

Excluding the two Ohio conference frays, fan interest was focused on the Ohio university-Western Kentucky struggle. The Bobcats, always a tough outfit in inaugural matches, held an edge in strength over the Blue Grass eleven but the game packed possibilities.

In past years, Ohio U. has ventured forth in first games to upset such formidable schools as Illinois. Consequently, Don Peden's boys usually bask in the spotlight on opening day.

Wesleyan, of unknown caliber, has experienced bleak seasons for the past three or four years. Backers are predicting the time is ripe for a revival of another era when the Bishops were tops among the so-called smaller schools. The alma game will leave a fair impression of where the Bishops are headed.

* * *

Doc Spears has been endeavoring since his arrival in Toledo to send his team through an undefeated season. Although he has turned out fine elevens, the heavy schedules have beaten down state title hopes. This year's 10-game slate, which includes many intersectional rivals, dims chances for more than an average won and lost mark.

Time Ticks Away Chances Of Clubs Chasing Redlegs

Cincinnati Holds Three and a Half Game Lead As Race Reaches Home Stretch.

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

TIME is ticking away chances of clubs chasing the Cincinnati Reds in the National league, and some of them must know by now how a clock sounds to the condemned.

Every day unreeled from the senior circuit's crowded calendar in the last week has made Cincinnati's 3½ game lead look longer.

Far from fading under the persistent pressure of four days, the Reds swung back into their best stride since July by winning seven of nine games.

Furthermore, the schedule this week gives them an opportunity to reinforce their position with ten games against the Boston Bees, Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates—the last three teams in the league and a class of opposition from which the Reds have won 41 games and lost only 12 this season.

In contrast, the Cardinals are carded for eight games with the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago clubs—all dangerous. St. Louis won 29 and lost 25 against them earlier.

The first club to feel the pinch of the constantly tightening finish was Chicago's defending champions, who have only 11 games to play and are 10 games behind.

This was the standing today:

Club	W	L	GB	GTP
Cincinnati	85	52	....	17
St. Louis	82	56	3½	15(x)
Chicago	78	65	10	11
Brooklyn	74	63	11	17

(x) One game with New York cancelled.

The Reds and Cards divided doubleheaders yesterday. Cincinnati sounded the theme for the day by making nine errors, but Paul Derringer overcame six of them in the first game to beat the Bees, 6-5, for his 22nd victory and seventh straight. Boston took the nightcap, 5-3.

Derringer Wins Despite Errors

THE Reds may acclaim Paul Derringer, the Kentucky gentleman with no nerves, as one of the few pitchers in baseball to win a ball game when his team pulled six foggy errors in no more than 8½ innings before 28,282 fans. Likewise, no contumely shall be heaped on Gene Thompson for failing to win yesterday's second game, even though he was stricken with only three bobbles.

Paul's 6-5 victory, his seventh straight and 22nd of the year in the opener was produced in the face of things which would dismay one less stout-hearted. The second inning displayed Eddie Joost dropping a friendly toss at second base, Billy Myers kicking around a double-play ball, and Ernie Lombardi throwing one into left field. That added up to three unearned runs for the Bees.

In addition, Lombardi suffered the indignity of seeing Bill Wietelmann, a recruit from the Bees' Hartford Farm, steal two bases on him. Then Sisti skidded home for his part in a double steal

Fortunately the Reds came through with some timely hitting, including triples by Joost and Frank McCormick, for enough runs to win.

The nightcap went five innings before things got slippery again. In the sixth Myers delivered his fourth error of the day and it was another double-play ball. Three runs followed that.

The Bees got two more in the seventh the normal way—three singles and a sacrifice. Although the Reds threatened mightily in the sixth, eighth, and ninth, each threat developed into just one run and the final score was 5 to 3.

Dodgers Virtually Eliminate Cubs

CARL HUBBELL pitched the Giants to a 2-1 triumph over the Cards in the first game, but Fiddler Bill McGee reversed the tables in the second session with a four-hitter to win by the identical score.

The Brooklyn Dodgers swept two games from Chicago virtually to eliminate the Cubs from pennant contention. The Cubs made three boners in the first game and lost 10-4, then fell helpless, 3-2, before Luke Hamlin's five-hit flinging in the second.

The Pirates committed eight errors in their first game to collapse, 7-3, for the Phillies, but grabbed the second installment, 10-1, on Bob Klinger's four-hit pitching and a 17-hit offensive led by Arky Vaughan and Paul Waner.

The Yankees relaxed, having clinched their fourth consecutive American League championship Saturday, and dropped a double bill to the St. Louis Browns, 8-4 and 3-1, as the tailenders gave a disrespectful salute to Red Ruffing and Lefty Gomez, New York's aces.

Five errors by the Cleveland Indians helped the Philadelphia Athletics beat Bob Feller, 4-2, but the A's made four blunders themselves as the Indians staged a 17-hit uprising to take the nightcap, 18-5.

Thornton Lee's southpaw slants stymied the Boston Red Sox on three hits as the Chicago White Sox opened with a 6-1 victory, but Boston retaliated with an 11-7 conquest in the second.

Hank Greenberg's homer in the 11th inning decided Detroit's single game with the Washington Senators, 3-2.

White Linen Cap Fails To Win for Billows.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The national amateur golf title match all but shattered the faith of Ray Billows, 25-year-old Poughkeepsie, N. Y., golfer, in good luck charms.

Billows had what he thought was a good luck charm when he met Marvin (Bud) Ward, 26, of Spokane, Wash., in Saturday's championship battle, but it didn't help him much. Ward won the match and the title, 7 and 5, climaxing a week of brilliant play over the 7,022-yard North Shore Country club course.

So after the match Billows returned to Charlie Yates of Atlanta, Ga., the white linen cap he had worn as a charm. It was the same cap that Yates wore when he won the British amateur title in 1938. But it didn't seem to work for either of them here at North Shore.

Jocha's Homer Features Win

Merchants Close Season With 8 to 5 Victory.

Evelyn Jocha's home run with the bases loaded in the fourth inning featured the Mansfield Merchants girls softball team's 8 to 5 triumph over the Akron Local No. 5 club at North Lake park Sunday.

This game concluded the season for the Merchants, who won 33 games while losing only six. The team was sponsored by the Home Materials company, Meder Recreation, Orange Street Cafe, Cameo Lunch, Recreation pool room, Kochheiser Sports store, Remy's Sunoco station and Dickson's refreshment stand.

Third Baseman Donna Schuster was the leading hitter for the Merchants with a .421 average. She was followed by Sturgeon, who hit .403. Jocha followed with .385.

Riggs Annexes Tennis Crown

Defeats Young Van Horn in Straight Sets.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y.—(AP)—Bobby Riggs, the Chicago minister's son, finally has won the National Men's Tennis championship and made good a promise to himself of three years' standing.

He reached his goal late yesterday by knocking the spots from young Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4, in 58 minutes of endeavor.

Bobby said he probably would continue to play as an amateur two more years—at least long enough to defend his Wimbledon and American titles next year.

Alice Marble of Beverly Hills won the women's title for the third time and gained permanent possession of the Gaudy trophy by defeating gallant Helen Jacobs, 6-0, 8-10, 6-4.

Eastern Clubs Vie In Finals

Louisville and Indianapolis Rout Blues, Millers.

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City and Minneapolis ran away from the American association field in a season's span, but it required only five games for Indianapolis and Louisville to oust them from the Shaughnessy playoffs.

The two eastern division clubs each won their decisive triumphs yesterday — third place Indianapolis over pennant winning Kansas City and fourth place Louisville over runner up Minneapolis.

The winners meet tonight at Indianapolis in the first game of the championship round with the victor in the four-out-of-seven series qualifying to meet the International league playoff winner in the "little world series."

Indianapolis, which finished two games behind Kansas City in the regular schedule, pounded three Blues hurlers last night for a 6 to 3 triumph behind another effective pitching performance by Red Barrett. Allen Hunt's double with the bases filled in the seventh clinched the victory.

WOLF STARS AT PLATE AS KOBACKER CLUB WINS

Pounding out a home run, triple and single, Wolf led the Kobacker store softball team to a one-sided 12 to 4 victory over the Galion All-Stars in Leesville Sunday. The winners' big inning was the third in which they scored six runs. Rachel and Gross gave the losers seven hits.

Gabby Hartnett, who has caught more than 1,730 big league ball games shows no fatigue, says a news story. That's natural—seeing a catcher while doing his job is sitting down half the time.

The League of Nations opened its latest session on schedule all right—but the opening remarks were sort of drowned out by gunfire.

Maybe the reason the French have made no better progress on the western front, they never can be quite sure they are attacking the Siegfried line, the Limes line or the Westwall.

Among other things — along with the liner Bremen — which have vanished from public view is that brief case Sir Nevile Henderson kept carting back and forth between London and Berlin.

PRICES SUFFER WORST SETBACK IN WAR BOOM

Recessions Range From 1 to 6 Points as 'Peace Scare' Hits Market.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—A "peace scare" hit the stock market today and prices suffered their worst set-back since the war boom started nearly three weeks ago.

Initial recessions ranged from 1 to 6 points, with the recently fast-climbing steels among the principal sliders. Blocks of as much as 10,000 shares changed hands at the opening. Dealings slowed later and recoveries cropped up here and there, but volume was small near the fourth hour.

Traders who had been betting on a long war cashed profits quickly as thoughts of an armistice proposal by Germany or Italy were revived by the apparent collapse of the Poles, the Russian invasion of Poland and signs of stronger Nazi resistance on the western front.

Bonds were lower, but not quite as much as stocks. Securities at Amsterdam weakened. Commodities displayed a downward drift and the British pound sterling again slipped in terms of the dollar.

Prominent share losers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Anaconda, International Nickel, Texas Corp., Westinghouse, Du Pont, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union and Westinghouse.

or the signal lights which were flashing at the time.

Born Sept. 16, 1923, the youth had celebrated his 16th birthday anniversary Saturday. He had lived in Shelby several years, moving with his parents from Bucyrus.

Besides his parents he is survived by one sister, Jean. The body was removed to the Sutter funeral home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

In an accident last night on route 13, just north of the city limits, David L. Hudson, 17, of 190 East Fourth street, received possible fractures of the arm and ribs when the automobile he was driving crashed into a utility pole.

Two persons were injured at 1 a. m. yesterday when the car in which they were riding plunged through a guard rail on route 87 east of Bellville.

They were Mary Schaub, 25, the driver, and Ruth Gruver, 29, both of Loudonville, who received cuts and bruises and were treated by a Bellville physician. Gaylord Hayes, Loudonville, a passenger, escaped injury.

Miss Schaub told highway patrolmen she failed to make a turn in the road.

James Etzwiler, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Etzwiler, 61 Reba avenue, and his grandmother, Mrs. Edith Etzwiler, 11½ East Temple court, were treated at the General hospital for injuries sustained when an automobile crashed through the fence at the Fairgrounds yesterday afternoon.

2 Children Hit By Car.

Two other children were injured Saturday when struck by automobiles. They were Maurice Stretch, 10, of 149 Wood street, and Bonnie Bonecutter, 8, of 281 Newman street.

Police said the Bonecutter girl was struck by a car operated by William A. Nelson, R. D. 6, Ashland, as she was crossing the street in front of her home.

Young Stretch roller skated into a machine driven by Carl Finfgeld, 47 Gibson avenue, at Park avenue west and North Walnut street.

A triple collision in a "junk yard derby" at Springfield cost the life of Edward Matlock, 26, who died of a fractured skull.

Another fatality was registered in an auto racing program on the state fair grounds track at Columbus when Russell Watts, 33, was blinded by dust and walked into the path of two cars.

Earl Besser, 25, was killed at Mount Vernon when his gravel truck was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train. Edward Woods, 28, met death at Cleveland when an automobile crashed into a tree, and Naomi R. Knisely, 21, died in a motorcycle accident at Columbus.

Beatrice Long, 13, roller skating in the street, was killed by an automobile at Tiffin. A hit-skip motorist was blamed for the death of John Lovitz, 63, whose body was found on a highway five miles west of Youngstown.

of the British fleet, he failed to reckon with the sea-dogs who from cabin boy to golden-crusted admirals like to look upon themselves as the heritage of Nelson.

This sudden attack upon the Courageous, eclipsing in its daring all naval engagements in the early stages of the last World war, makes it evident that Hitler himself admits that the British navy is the greatest threat to Germany.

He dealt with Poland in a fortnight, and now Russia's entry into the fray—whatever the ultimate outcome of the Kremlin's amazing decision may be—indicates that within a very short time he can turn his attention from the eastern front and concentrate upon the west.

But there the French and German armies do seem to be almost immobilized from the outset. The painstaking French advances into German soil during the last two weeks indicate that even the major offensive from either side, when it comes, will not be a decisive thrust. It will be merely the opening chapter of a tedious and wearing exchange of hostilities that might last for years.

But on the sea, the war will be a different matter. Germany's navy, save for her three vest-pocket battleships and a fleet of submarines that already has proved itself an amazingly destructive weapon, is almost negligible.

It is upon the navy that Britain relies to starve out Germany. The present plan of campaign presumably does not call for a naval offensive, but in view of what happened today, there may conceivably be one.

GERMANS POUR THOUSANDS INTO WESTERN FRONT

Berlin, Predicting Early Fall of Poland, Rushes Troops to Stem French Advance.

Italy—still on the sidelines although a military ally of Germany—into sharper focus. Some Frenchmen even profess to see helpful signs in Poland since, they say, there is bound to be mutual distrust between Adolf Hitler and Joseph Stalin with both their armies on the same foreign soil.

The French army now firmly holds the left bank of the Saar river from the German border city of Saarguemines, where the river enters Germany, to Melzig, where it nears Luxembourg.

The French reported fighting off numerous flanking movements attempted by the German infantry to gain summits overlooking Saarbruecken and Saarlautern, two important objectives in German territory.

Thus, the French dominate the whole Saar valley, rich industrial region.

(Reports in Basel, Switzerland, said French fortress troops had gained and held positions within three miles of Saarlautern during last night.)

In a communique this morning the French general staff reported the night had been calm along the entire front, with only local advance guard actions.

Meanwhile, to balance German reinforcements the French doubled their own defensive lines. Both sides shuttled into positions for an expected major combat.

French patrols reported the last German troops had moved out of Saarbruecken retiring to new outposts before Dudweiler, several thousand yards away.

Action now is centered mid-way along a 100-mile front extending from Luxembourg to the Rhine river.

Reports from the front said the Germans were bringing up whole squadrons of warplanes from Poland as well as ground troops.

France Increases West Front Forces

PARIS —(U.P.)— French forces were strengthened, in men and materials, on the western front today in answer to heavy German reinforcements.

The French high command communique said:

"All sectors on the front were quiet throughout the night. There was local activity in advance posts."

The previous communique, last night, had said:

"There is nothing important to remark. Aerial activity was reduced on account of atmospheric conditions."

It was understood that there had been a lull in fighting for almost 36 hours.

This lull was regarded a temporary interval in which the French were using tactics used since the start of the war and were preparing their next move against the German positions.

The continued arrival of German reinforcements from Poland, it was understood, had caused the French high command to strengthen its lines with more men and more equipment in preparation for their next push.

The presence of stronger enemy forces, it was said, had raised new problems which French general headquarters desired to solve before the next French advances.

They were Dale Channel, 29, of 195 Rowland avenue; Walter C. Hall, 21, Ashland road; Frank Potter, 20, Ashland, and John J. Hutchinson, 30, Wadsworth. All but Hall pleaded guilty. He was convicted. Channell was arrested on route 13, south of Mansfield. The others were picked up on U. S. route 42, north of the city.

north and Rumania on the south.

Deepest thrusts were said to be far to the north—center of Poland's white Russian minority—and in southeastern Poland — the Ukrainian minority territory. Towns as far as 50 miles from the frontier were listed as captured in the first day's invasion.

Russians said they took Glebokie, northeast of Wilno; Baranowicze, railway center 50 miles from the frontier; Dubno, northeast of Lwow, and Tarnopol, in the Ukranian section southeast of Lwow.

That would place the Russian and German armies within 68 miles of each other. That is the distance from Dubno to Wlodzimierz, reported held by German troops north of Lwow.

At Baranowicze, German planes and Russian troops struck at the same objective. The Russian general staff announced the capture after Russian and German radio broadcasts told of heavy German air raids against the city.

Resistance 'Weak.'

A general staff comunique said the Russians defeated several "weak advance units and reserves of the Polish army" at points where there was resistance.

(The Polish legation at Berne, Switzerland, said it heard a Polish radio broadcast that Russian troops had been repulsed at Moldoeczno, 20 miles from the northeastern frontier.

(At Paris, it was reported the Red army had taken Zaleszczyki, in the southeast, on the Polish-Rumanian border).

The general staff said ten Polish warplanes were brought down.

Invasion from the East, reported started yesterday at 6 a. m. (10 p. m., EST, Saturday), came two days after Russia and Japan called an armistice along the border of Soviet-controlled outer Mongolia and Japanese-dominated Manchoukuo.

Russia's army, says the Communist party newspaper Pravda, totaled 1,800,000 men in peace time.

concentration center near Bucharest.

Word was received that Criscaetec, Rumanian frontier town, had been bombed by mistake last night either by German or Russian warplanes, setting fire to a sugar refinery.

Meager reports from Russian sources indicated the Red army was advancing with only minor skirmishes.

Meanwhile stunned divisions of Poland's defenders, disarmed at the border, began streaming into Rumania.

Behind them, reports from Berlin and Moscow, indicated, a remnant of Poland's scattered armies still fought invasion from the east and west.

The Polish government officials have been informed they must engage in no political activity while in the country and arrange to leave as soon as possible.

Through Franklin Mott Gunther, U. S. minister to Bucharest, President Moscicki sent a telegram to President Roosevelt protesting that German planes had "bombarded methodically and with premeditation" open towns in Poland.

The telegram added:

"There are thousands of dead and wounded in the civil population in cities without a military objective."

Rumania massed troops behind her border and established inspection stations for disarming Polish soldiers.

The Poles tramped in wearily, carrying full equipment. Many said they weren't through fighting. They told of plans to form a foreign legion and face German troops again.

With the soldiers came hundreds of civilian refugees in wagons, automobiles and afoot.

Polish fliers jammed the small airport at Cernauti. One plane landed on top of three others, destroying all four.

German planes were reported close to the Polish-Rumanian border. Word of bombings came from several points along the frontier. The Zaleszczyzki bridge across the boundary-marking Dniester river was destroyed. A misdirected bomb killed and injured several in the nearby Rumania village of Wignitz.

MOSCOW HOLDS KEY POSITION

Foreign Expert Says Russian Intentions Will Determine Future Status of War.

ever, whether to accept:

1. Russia's declaration that the occupation is merely to protect the Russian peoples of Poland, and that the Soviet intends to remain neutral. On the face of it this would presage a withdrawal of Russian forces when the need of protection passed.

2. Poland's charge that the Russian move constitutes aggression which would mean that Germany and Russia have partitioned Poland between them — an event which had been widely predicted by the European press. This would place England and France in the position of challenging Russia to war.

However, the allies may choose to regard that now, the fact remains that they have pledged themselves to free Poland from invasion. That means not only invasion from Germany, but from any other country.

Should the Anglo-French brotherhood defeat Germany, then they would be bound by the bond with Poland to try to eject from Poland any foreign force of occupation which refused to move out.

Since Poland already has tottering before the overwhelming German onslaught, the Rusisan occupation can scarcely make the little nation's position worse. Indeed, it may save the Poles from shedding more of their blood in an epic but hopeless effort to defend themselves.

The Anglo-French strategy, so far as is known, hadn't anticipated that Poland would be able to stand off the Germans, or that the allies would be able to give the Poles the immediate aid necessary to withstand the assault.

Rather have Britain and France been taking a long view of the war and planning to reestablish Poland in full sovereignty at the end of the conflict.

Other immediate effects of the invasion are such as to cause the Anglo-French allies deep concern.

Hungary and the Balkans already had felt the breeze of the Russo - German anti - aggression past and were treading circumspectly.

Hungary last week declined to announce her neutrality, and this was generally interpreted as being favorable to Germany. Turkey, recently pledged to Britain in a defensive pact, let it be known through the inspired press that she is the Soviet's greatest friend.

The support of Turkey is of vast importance to either side in the war, since she controls the strategic Dardanelles.

Rumania naturally is shaking in her boots over the Russian invasion just across her border. For years she has been living in fear that the Soviet would demand return of Bessarabia, which was taken from Russia at the end of the World war. Rumania's heart is with the Anglo-French allies, but hidden sympathy is all she can give them now.

In short, Hungary, and the whole Balkan peninsula would seem to have been drawn closer within the network of German control by the Russian move.

The Soviet occupation has released masses of German troops which are being rushed to the western front to combat the Anglo-French attack.

The fighting in this theater was summed up by a French communique this morning: "The night was calm on the entirety of the front."

TOLD MRS. FINK WAS INSANE

Fremont Jury Hears Alienist Testify on Mentality of Accused Baby Killer.

FREMONT—An alienist testified at Velma Baker Fink's first degree murder trial today that he believed the 22-year-old divorcee "had a true psychosis or insanity following childbirth" when she threw her 10-week-old baby into a creek last June 13.

The statement of Dr. Louis J. Karnosch, Cleveland alienist, followed a series of hypothetical questions by Ben H. Dewey, defense attorney. Dewey had reviewed Mrs. Fink's testimony of seeing non-existent objects, declared she was anemic and had low blood pressure and recalled it took her six years to finish a four-year high school course.

Dr. Karnosch had not examined the defendant, and his answer was based on the defense questions.

On cross-examination, Prosecutor A. L. Hyzer declared "the true facts" of the slaying were told in Mrs. Fink's confession. He recalled that it described how she took the baby from his crib, drove to the creek, and after throwing the child in waited to hear the splash.

Hyzer asked the alienist if there was any evidence of insanity shown in the confession.

"There is no evidence of insanity from the facts you gave me," said Dr. Karnosch.

The Clyde, O., mother has pleaded innocent by reason of temporary insanity.

Dewey said other remaining defense witnesses will be called tomorrow.

PAY ASSURED

County Workers to Get Wages as Result of Allocation.

The threat of a payless payday for Richland county road workers was eliminated today when the state allocated $10,000 to the county in gasoline tax receipts.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword, who last week predicted the 65 workers would go unpaid, said the funds would enable the road department to pay the salaries due Wednesday and take care of other immediate obligations. The payroll will total more than $4,000.

The county receives about six allocations of gas tax funds during the year, totaling about $65,000. Payments so far this year have amount to $48,000.

The gasoline tax money and auto license receipts provide all the funds the road department receives.

German armies, pushing eastward to meet the Russians, were crushing the remnants of Poland's fighting force in a vise that stretched to Brest-Litovsk in the north and Drohobycz, east of Lwow, in the south, while word was expected momentarily in Berlin that Nazis were storming Warsaw.

The Polish government, harassed by advanced Nazi columns an menaced by Nazi bombs explodin close to the Rumanian frontier fled toward Bucharest in the hop of continuing to France.

German circles generally wer expecting a new peace move b the totalitarian bloc, with eithe Italian Premier Benito Mussolin or Stalin, moving to end the conflict in behalf of Adolf Hitler an on the basis of the Nazi triumph in Poland.

Allies Stand Pat.

In both London and Paris, the press again emphasized that such a move would be rejected and tha the allied governments were in the fight until Hitlerism was crushed.

The most vital factor in the changing European war front was the Soviet advance, which resulted in the occupation of 13 towns and the shooting down of 10 Polish airplanes, according to the Moscow communique telling how the "weak" Polish resistance was overcome.

The germ of hope on the part of the allies lay in the fact that Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia now were practically face to face along a common frontier. Nazis announced the Soviet advance with jubiliation on the grounds that it was done by agreement and that they could now turn all their forces against France and Britain without fear that the British blockade at sea would starve them out.

For the moment, every move made by the Soviet government appeared to be an aid to Adolf Hitler, but technically Russia had so far merely declared that the Red army was moving into Poland to protect minorities that were once Russian.

Tells How Great He Feels Since Vendol Relieved Him

Well Known Farmer Says Famous Medicine Relieved Gas in Stomach, Cramps, Nervous Indigestion, Acid Risings, and Other Troubles Associated with Constipation. Wants Other Sufferers to Know About It.

The mighty power of Vendol! When has there been a medicine sold in this city ever to score so many victories over stubborn cases? Thousands who have found their appetites gone, which weakened and wasted their bodies, others who suffered the tortures of sour stomach, distress from gas and bloating, their back and legs full of aches and pains, wearied and tired out from light, broken sleep, all because of constipation and faulty elimination, have found happy relief and comfort in this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline preparation Vendol has achieved hundreds of such triumphs in this city and nearby towns, and as a striking example of one of them, the experience of Mr. Bryan F. Boals, prosperous farmer residing on Route 2, Mansfield, is given below:

"Vendol did for me in a short time what all of medicines I tried failed to do, so I'm glad to recommend it to others suffering from the same cause," says Mr. Boals. "I was constipated every day which made me lose my appetite, but what light meals I did eat soured in my stomach, causing gas and indigestion so bad that food often came right back up and left a sour, burning, sickening taste in my mouth for hours.

"This constipated condition made me so nervous that my rest was broken and I got up in the mornings feeling tired and jaded. I tired easily and before the day's work was finished I was almost exhausted.

"I was advised to try Vendol and a few bottles along with the little Vendol laxative tablets have made me feel like a new person. This medicine gave the most satisfying relief from constipation; then all my other troubles just gradually disappeared. Appetite is good, pains are gone, my sleep is restful, and my work seems easy. I am glad to tell about this splendid medicine to lead others to try it."

Vendol has helped many Mansfield people in the same way. Call on the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., and let him tell you all about this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine. Vendol is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

PAYS BILLS

Easily half of our loans are made to pay off personal obligations and settle up family bills that often cause so many "headaches".

Suppose, for example, your debts add up to $200 and you need a little extra cash for clothes and fall supplies. A loan of, say, $300 will cover everything. Then you can ease your way out of debt and have more money for yourself.

TOO QUICK FOR DENTIST

MENOMONEE FALLS, Wis.—(U.P.)—Mrs. John (Grandma) Becking, 87, usually pulls her own teeth, but she had to go to the dentist to extract her last one. The dentist deadened the nerve and then asked Mrs. Becking, "Does that still hurt?" She touched it gingerly and then gave it a quick yank, extracting the tooth herself.

CHAPTER VII.

Madison made no hasty movement; he held her close a moment and then went and opened the door. He found there Henry Potter and Hiram Riley, two of the men who had been at the town meeting.

"We'd like you to come to a conference, Mr. Madison," Potter said, "kinda sudden, I know, but we wanta get this thing a-goin'. I take it you can leave your party doin's, seein' your sister can look after things."

"I'll be glad to attend your meeting," Madison said, in a rather indifferent tone. "Where is it to be held?"

"It's bein' held now—right over to my house," Potter told him, "and we'd like you to come right along."

"Very well, I will. You'll excuse me, Miss Verne? This is an important matter."

"Certainly, Mr. Madison. Good night. I'll tell Cornelia where you have gone."

The men went away, and Yvette had a suden inspiration. Here she was, alone in Madison's study, and there was a telephone there, and she didn't believe it was connected with any other in the house. Here was her chance! She locked the door, and taking up the instrument, called a New York number. She talked a short time and replaced the telephone looking a little anxious.

Cornelia was troubled by Yvette's story, and shook her head, saying, "I don't like it. The idea of those men coming for him like that. And coming on Sunday, too!"

"Can I do anything for you?" Yvette asked, gently.

"No, my dear. Run away and find Craig. The boy has been looking for you."

But Yvette did not look for Craig. She decided that Tom Sheldon rated a little attention from her, and she went toward him, smiling.

"Craig just went through here," he said, returning her smile. "I think he's—"

She interrupted him.

"Who said I wanted Craig? Why can't I talk with you?"

"I never though of that! Talk ahead."

"Let's go to the dining room. I haven't had a bite since lunch and I'm starving."

"So'm I. I always am. But I'm sure you can find something you like, for there's everything here."

Nor was he wrong. Yvette had attended many lavish feasts, but this was the most elaborate she had ever seen.

"Why?" she asked, looking at Sheldon, after they both were supplied with well-filled plates.

"Why so much? Well, really there won't be such a lot left over. Crowds of people will come all evening. New Yorkers make this a regular pilgrimage, and they come from all places round about."

"Is it ostentation?"

"It is not! Uncle Harley doesn't know the meaning of that word. It is hospitality. That man has no sense of moderation. He always is like that. If he buys a lead pencil he buys a gross. If he buys a shirt, he buys twelve dozen."

"Yes. I've noticed that tendency, but I hadn't realized how strong it is in his nature."

"It's what is spoiling all his beautiful scheme of fixing up the village, you know. He really wants to do it all. He would put every cent he owns into it, but he knows his duty to his sister and us boys, and, thank goodness, he hasn't cut us off—yet."

"But it's shocking to have him pour out his wealth like that on a town that gives him no credit for it, and even refuses to help him properly."

While they ate their supper, Yvette kept her companion on the subject of his uncle's hobby and at last she began to understand the strange idiosyncrasy of Harley Madison's behavior.

When they left the dining room, Yvette felt very tired and utterly unwilling to make pretty talk for the hordes of people who were still arriving. She confided this to Cornelia, who, with ready sympathy and tact, told her to go at once to her room, and rest, and go to bed when she wished.

"You have done your part," Cornelia said, "we owe you many thanks for giving our friends the joy of meeting you, and for your delightful kindness and courtesy to them. Run along now, dear, and have a good rest."

Touched by this appreciation, Yvette gave her hostess a light kiss on her cheek, hoping it would not offend her.

But Cornelia seemed pleased, and patted the girl's hand as she sent her away.

Yvette went to her rooms, and taking off the rainbowed gown, drew on a negligee and lay down on her chaise longue. She thought for a long time, and then fell into a short, restless sleep.

Downstairs, the party began to thin out after Yvette's departure, but it was nearly midnight, when Miss Cornelia turned her weary steps toward her bedroom.

The party had been a nervous strain, and sleep came quickly to the tired hostess, but as was her custom she wakened early, and at six o'clock in the morning, she opened her eyes to see Hetty sitting beside her bed.

"For heaven's sake! what's the matter?" exclaimed Cornelia sitting up straight, while Hetty threw a wrap around her shoulders. "What has happened to Harley?"

"Nothing at all. Now, ca'am down, Miss Cornelia, your brother is all right, far's I know. It's somthing else I have to tell you."

"Go ahead, then."

"Bein' wakeful about three o'clock, I seen Miss Verne a-meetin' of a man in the ivy arbor."

"At three in the morning?"

"Yes, Miss Verne sneaked out of the house, and scoot into the ivy arbor and when she come out again there was a man with her, who had been waitin' for her there."

"Who was the man?"

"That I don't know. I don't think it was any of our men here in the house, but I couldn't say for sure."

"I don't believe Miss Verne did that. It would be too dark for you to see her anyway."

"I did see her."

"Go back to bed, Hetty, and forget it. I'll ask Miss Verne about it in the morning, and she'll tell me what happened, if anything."

Hetty went off, rather miffed, but feeling sure that when she spoke to Miss Verne in the morning, Miss Cornelia would sing a different tune.

Cornelia was troubled. She had just begun to take a liking to the girl, and if her antecedents were all they ought to be, Cornelia was rather in favor of Craig's marrying her. She had been pleasantly surprised at Yvette's innate good breeding and refinement.

This story of Yvette going out at three, to meet a man in the ivy arbor, was as ludicrous as it was incredible. There was no sense in a New York man coming up here to see her clandestinely, for the girl knew he would be welcomed as a proper guest.

She could scarce wait for a late enough hour to disturb Yvette, but at eight, she sent Aggie to ask Miss Verne, if Miss Madison might pay her a call. The response was cordial, and in negligee and cap, Cornelia visited her guest.

Yvette had risen, and was robed in an elaborate kimono, and waiting in her boudoir.

"Miss Verne," Cornelia said, "did you go downstairs and outdoors this morning at three o'clock, to meet somebody in the ivy arbor?"

Yvette looked at her surprised, but entirely self-possessed.

"No, Miss Madison, I did not."

"You did not leave your rooms after you bade me good night and came up to bed?"

"I did not."

"Thank you, I am sorry to have troubled you in the matter."

Monday morning, in response to a message from his uncle, Craig Madison went into the study. He had a vague premonition of trouble.

He was greeted with a kindly "Hello, my boy," and seated himself at the broad desk, opposite Harley Madison.

"How much do you know about my dealings with the village people who are working with me in regard to fixing up the general appearance of New Plymouth?"

"Not an awful lot, Uncle Harley, but I've picked up bits here and there from Ames, and Aunt Cornelia. As you know, I'd like to help with the architectural doings, but I know when and if you want me to do that, you'll tell me so."

"Right. Well, Craig, the project is not running smoothly,— not at all. In fact, its course is becoming so difficult, I am tempted to step out of it all."

"Whew! That would bring about a civil war, or something, wouldn't it?"

"Perhaps so. But there is another reason why I think of dropping the plan. I'm going to tell it to you, right now, and—you won't like it at all."

Craig stared.

"You're not going to put me in your place, I hope!"

"No; on the contrary, I want to put myself in your place."

Like a flash, Craig knew! It came to him, intuitively, a sudden revelation, the knowledge of a blow that must be met.

"Go on, sir," he said.

* * *

His uncle gazed at him admiringly. "You're wonderfully quick," he said. "I believe you know what I'm going to say. Yes, it is about Yvette."

"And what about her?"

Craig tried to speak lightly, but didn't quite succeed.

"I want to marry her. I have fallen in love with her, not only with her beauty and grace, but with her fine character and noble nature. I loved my wife, but with a gentle, tender affection, compared with which my love for Yvette is a devotion, a passion that can scarce be controlled. But I cannot feel it honorable to tell her of this love without telling you first. Is she pledged to you, in any way? Is it your intention to marry her? Am I infringing on your rights?"

Craig said nothing for a few moments. Then:

"Uncle Harley, it is fine of you to tell me of this matter. You have as much right as I, and more, to ask Yvette to be your wife. I do love her, deeply, but I have not told her so, nor have I given her any definite reason to think it. The situation is a bit complex, but were it a thousand times more so, I would willingly relinquish my hopes in your favor. Go in and win! I will be the first to congratulate you, and that in all sincerity."

"You're a brick, Craig, and I accept your offer as frankly as it is made. But we are not the final court of appeal. It would not be at all surprising if Yvette preferred your youthful charms to my more mature advantages. So, keep your hopes, and I will keep mine. We will say, a fair field and no favor, and may the best man win."

"I agree, heartily. Can we arrange matters before she leaves us?"

"When is she going?"

"Tomorrow, I think. But if she is—er—interested, she might be persuaded to stay a few days longer."

"I shall find out about her feelings today. As you know, I'm impetuous, and I want to put my courage to the test to win or lose it all."

"Shall you go on with the village project, if Yvette accepts the your proposal?"

"No. That would be the reason I told you of dropping the whole plan. I'm pretty sure she would not care to live here, and if we live elsewhere I should lose all interest in the place."

"And Aunt Cornelia?"

"I know my sister well enough to feel sure that she will gladly consent to anything that means my life's happiness. I'll give her this house, if she wants to stay here, or arrange a home for her wherever she wants it."

"Of course, you will, Uncle. I know everything will fit into place and, in my opinion, Yvette already loves you."

"Yes," and Harley Madison looked complacent. "I, too, have a notion that way."

"I'd like to see the looks on the faces of those village fathers when you tell them the news!"

"I shall not like to see it! I have ample reason to believe their looks clearly indicate battle, murder and sudden death!"

"Uncle, don't say such things." I never spoke a truer word," Harley Madison said, almost solemnly.

"When is the next meeting?"

"Wednesday night. But if my lady doesn't smile on my suit, there will be nothing to disturb further the already irate citizens."

His mind and heart filled with various seething emotions, Craig went away to think things out by himself.

HOW CAN I GET A LOAN OF $100-$200-$300 AT LOW COST?

If you want to get a loan at the lowest cost, there are three things that you should do.

1. Insist on being told what rate of interest you are asked to pay for your loan.
2. Compare rates and terms. Then get your loan where you pay the lowest interest charge.
3. Take only as long to repay your loan as you really need.

Many loan companies charge the maximum rate permitted by the Ohio small loan law (3% per month on loans up to $300 and 8% per annum on balances above $300.) There are other companies which charge less than this lawful maximum. At Household Finance you pay only 2% per month on loans of $20 to $300 and 6% per annum on balances above $300. These charges—the lowest we have ever offered—are actually ⅓ below the lawful maximum.

There are three reasons why we can make loans at these low rates: (1) We do a large volume of business which reduces our expenses. (2) Our 60 years of experience makes possible more efficient operation and lower costs. (3) We have access to large amounts of money to lend to our customers.

One rate to everyone at Household

Every customer gets the benefit of our low rates. We have only one rate schedule, available to everyone. The table below shows just a few examples of how you save at Household.

Choose your own monthly payment

At Household you repay your loan on the installment schedule that suits your own needs. Find the amount of cash you want to borrow in the first column of the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment you wish to make. Note that you can make very small monthly payments or you can pay larger installments and pay up sooner. The sooner you repay your loan, the less it costs.

No matter where you get your loan, the longer you take to repay, the greater the charges. For that reason we urge everyone to repay in a reasonable time. Before you get a loan, be sure that you know how many payments you are asked to make. Figure the total amount you must pay in order to repay your loan in full including all charges.

Simple to borrow at Household

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is tell us about your needs. No stocks or bonds required. No credit inquiries made of friends or relatives. You get the money you need privately and promptly. There's no annoying delay—your application is passed upon by the manager of the office you deal with. Every consideration is shown in case sickness or unemployment make it difficult for you to pay your installments when due.

In the interest of your own pocketbook, get all the facts about loan costs before you borrow. Compare Household's terms with charges elsewhere. Then phone or visit us for further information without obligation.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1939.

Simile: As heroic as a vowel that looms lonesomely among the consonants in the names of Polish towns.

As between belligerency and neutrality, Americans don't seem to like either. We want to keep out and tell the participants what to do.

Anniversary of the Constitution

PRESENT disturbed conditions in Europe tend to give more than ordinary emphasis to this year's observance of Constitution day, which, in reality, extends through a week of recognition in the form of special programs intended to recall that it was on September 17, 1787—just one hundred and fifty-two years ago—that the Constitution of the United States, in its original form, was adopted.

The Bill of Rights, and later amendments, have strengthened and clarified the intent of the Constitution through the intervening century and a half, but the fundamentals of this great document have remained the same.

In its guarantees of individual rights, freedom of speech and the press, protection of minorities and dedication to the principle of self-government by majority expression, the Constitution provides an example which a number of other nations have attempted to follow, some with reasonable success, others with failure.

Where democracy, as exemplified in the intent of the Constitution, has failed, the failure can be traced to lack of sufficient intelligence among the responsible majority to meet the requirements of self-government — thus opening the way for reversion to either a dictatorship or some other form of forcible restraint of individual and group liberties.

Crowded prisons, constant requirement for law enforcement activities, unrestricted propagation of feeble-minded and disease-handicapped babies, prevalence of poverty and requirement for public support of indigents—all of these things argue against ability in self-government.

Yet there is the hope — and belief — that a sufficient majority of the people of the United States are able to perform the duties of citizenship in a way that will make the continuance of democracy possible in this country, and that universal education will gradually increase this majority, with consequent reduction of the percentage that requires police restraint, institutional care or paternalistic supervision by government.

It should be kept in mind that a Constitution which grants rights and privileges also imposes duties and responsibilities.

Why not make it a Thanksgiving week, from Nov. 23 to 30—if the United States can be kept out of war?

Hoodlum Conduct Reflects on City

SUCH BEHAVIOR as was reportedly indulged in last Thursday night by a large group of Mansfield Senior high school students—estimated at approximately 200—can scarcely be condoned as a mere manifestation of youthful exuberance.

Damaging property, petty thievery, insolence to police officers and total disregard for the rights of other people passes even the limits of tolerance ordinarily accorded such occasions.

It is from young people such as these that the people of Mansfield have a right to expect at least a fairly high average of juvenile conduct, for high school students may be assumed to have access to the best environment that this community is able to provide.

School buildings and educational facilities have been provided in Mansfield at a cost of millions of dollars, with an additional million dollars now going into two new junior high schools and improvements in other buildings.

The annual public school budget is around the $600,000 mark and a surprisingly large part of every dollar paid in taxes goes to maintenance of public schools.

The people of Mansfield have been liberal in their support of schools, and in approving bond issues required for school betterments. This has been in recognition of the benefits of education and with a desire to give the boys and girls of this city every possible opportunity to become intelligent citizens of a nation based on principles of self-government.

Such a demonstration as that of last Thursday night not only reflects on the participants, but also upon their parents, their schools and the entire community in which they live.

If Mansfield can do no better, through its home influences, its schools and its churches, than to develop a hoodlum group that ignores all rules of decent behavior and runs rampant through the streets in complete disregard of law and order, then an entirely different attitude must be taken in the matter of discipline and the police department should be charged with responsibility for quelling these youthful culprits.

The News-Journal has found frequent occasion to commend Mansfield school children, and young people in general, for creditable conduct and worthy accomplishments. It must feel equally free to adversely criticize such behavior as was recently indulged in, and to point out to parents and school authorities the responsibility for discipline that rests upon them, and the need for a kind of training that will insure against recurrence of such an intolerable episode.

Even under censorship, Americans have a better chance to keep tab on the war than residents of countries actually involved.

League of Nations Ideals

SEPTEMBER is normally the time for the annual meeting of the assembly and council of the League of Nations.

This year the British government has asked that the meeting be postponed, for reasons clear to all. Many people, in fact, consider the League dead and its revival unlikely.

Such pessimism may be wrong. The League, despite its faults, represented the ideals and peace hopes of a large part of the world. Those hopes have been defied, not destroyed, by the great powers that allowed the League to drift into uselessness. There are many reasons for believing that the now helpless League, or a new League, will rise again after this war is over.

Next time, the League should have a better chance, for all the statesmen who weakened, ignored, or betrayed it have been proved wrong by the failure of their own "power diplomacy" If the nations are wise enough to profit from the lessons of the League's failure and the return of war, they should do better next time.

ON TO WARSAW!

Listen, World!

SAYS YOUNG AMERICA . . . "Does the U. S. A. Want 'Peace At Any Price'?"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DOES AMERICA WANT 'PEACE AT ANY PRICE'?" Young Mrs. W. Primeau of Los Angeles, is asking the one question that's good for a traffic-jam anywhere, these days. Says she—

"On all sides I hear the War Veterans crying out for Peace . . . Peace, regardless what it costs . . . Peace at any Price. It's true, I was too young to know the full horror of that last yar, but I still can't believe that we should be willing to sacrifice our priceless heritage of Democracy—Liberty, Freedom and Equality—just to save our hides! It's hard to die—but there are things far worse than death and such a betrayal of our fathers would be one of them.

"We don't want peace if it means backing down before dictatorial power . . . or standing idly by while our nationals are badgered or maybe even butchered in foreign countries."

Mrs. W. Primeau—Age 28.
Los Angeles, Calif.

It sounds like a red-hot call to arms! And would have meant one—in 1917. But youth has learned a lot in these fast-moving, frank-talking years since. It has learned that a man may serve his country as loyally and prove his own courage as well by STANDING PAT as by BOILING OVER. It has also learned that there are two sides to every war—AND NEITHER ONE'S A BUNCH OF ROSES.

The last war was a hideous failure. Why? There were plenty of men willing to die heroically. . . . BUT THERE WEREN'T ENOUGH MEN WILLING TO LIVE AND LET LIVE FAIRLY AND FREELY. And so Greed and Hate have smeared Europe ever since. . . . and paved the way for a Hitler.

Does American youth wish to give its life again, pulling chestnuts out of a fire which others have built? Haven't we enough freedom to save and democracy to save right here in our own country, without traipsing off to Europe to do the other fellow's job?

Sixteen-year-old Henry Josten, of Ivoryton, Conn., believes it doesn't . . . and we have. Listen—

"Young Americans, don't let yourselves and your country be dragged into another foreign war! We should be about tired of trying to save foreign democracies at the expense of our own. Can't you realize that when you go 'over there' to fight in some European quarrel you're taking the heart and hope right out of America? Are you—the young people whom this nation expects to carry on her democratic ideals—to be sent to foreign graves, before you have even had a chance to serve your own country?

"France and England, no doubt, will be expecting you to do their killing—but America needs you at home to help her living! American industry and business need your courage and new ideas. . . . American society needs your sportsmanship, your faith in life and humanity, and your will to keep America 'tops' commercially and mentally. . . . American mothers, fathers, sweethearts and wives want, and have a right to expect, your love and protection while your American children, if you have any, need you for their very lives.

"STAY AT HOME, YOUNG AMERICANS, WHERE YOU ARE REALLY NEEDED FOR A CONSTRUCTIVE RATHER THAN A DESTRUCTIVE CAUSE. AND WHERE YOU CAN REALLY SERVE YOUR COUNTRY."

Henry Josten—Age 16.
Ivoryton, Conn.

"Amen!" say I!

Health And Diet

Your Stomach Also Blushes.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE STOMACH is a good chemical factory The chemicals it secretes are designed to reduce foods to a state where they can be absorbed.

Besides the response to food, the stomach secretion varies with the emotions of the body. Fatigue, rage, fear, excitement can stop or set loose the stomach juice. "Just as sensitive persons blanch and blush externally," writes Dr. W. C. Alvarez, "so also they may blanch and blush internally." Perhaps your stomach "blushes" too easily and you call it indigestion.

The stomach is the grievance committee of the body. When anything is wrong anywhere, the stomach is likely to be upset.

One of the constituents of the stomach secretions is hydrochloric acid. It helps in the digestion of meats and proteins. When, for any reason, there is an increase in this stomach secretion, we have the picture of acid dyspepsia.

Its Symptoms.

The symptoms of acid dyspepsia are discomfort, burning, feeling of a lump in the stomach, cramping, one or more hours after eating. The discomfort is located in the pit of the stomach. "Heartburn" is a common complaint; it consists of the regurgitation of acid food up to the esophagus and into the mouth. The fluid may set the teeth on edge. Headache is a regular development. It may be present on waking, and may nag the patient through the day.

Treatment of acid dyspepsia is most satisfactory. The diet should be regulated. Sources of worry must be eliminated. Fresh air, sunshine, recreation cannot be emphasized too strongly.

Naturally, among the medicines the alkalis take first place. Milk of magnesia and bicarbonate of soda are prominently used among these. Milk of magnesia is magnesium oxide. It comes in two forms—light and heavy. There is no real choice between them. It neutralizes the acid in the stomach and is also laxative.

Good old soda, sodium bicarbonate, baking soda, is the standby of the acid dyspeptic everywhere. It may be taken in almost unlimited quantities. It is said to have secondary irritating qualities and to cause alkalosis, but I have seldom observed those effects. It causes "burping" because in uniting with the hydrochloric acid it produces salt and water and carbon dioxide gas. The gas dilates the stomach like a balloon, finally forcing escape—the "burp."

Other, and probably better, alkalis are calcium carbonate and bismuth.

Tobacco and alcohol should be excluded from the acid dyspeptic's routine.

The diet for acid dyspepsia should be mild and non-stimulating. Thorough and slow chewing and mastication of food is a habit to be learned.

Select three meals from the following articles: Water, milk, cream, butter, egg malted milk (unsweetened), strained milk soups, gelatin (with cream), custard (not sweet), soft-boiled eggs, plain toast properly-cooked grit-mush, wheat germ cereals or cream of wheat with butter or with cream and a small amount of sugar), mashed potatoes (beaten up light with milk).

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If I were a Shakespearean actor, or better than that, a director, I think I would possess myself of a recording of Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech to the British people when he told them that Great Britain was at war, and study it again and again.

All through his speech I had the impression of listening to something that Shakespeare had written. I thought some fine, intelligent actor who had schooled himself to a supreme moment, was approaching the climax of a great tragedy, and almost automatically I wondered how Maurice Evans, or Charles Laughton, or Leslie Howard, or any of those English actors would have come off with those same lines. It is certain they couldn't have done any better.

ONE thing this war will do for fiction and for the Broadway stage is to close out one school of writing and usher in another. From now on such plays as "Journey's End" and "What Price Glory" will be "dated." It will be almost impossible to think of 1914-18 as drama material, except in isolated instances, as the Civil war is now used. The terminology will be different.

I am already wondering about the cooties. Cooties were a part of the Poilus and the Tommies and the Doughboys in the trenches. They belonged, somehow, as a part of the scene. But how will the cooties like the new, streamlined Maginot line, or German's West Wall? Of course, it took the cooties a long time to make any headway in the World war. Right now the boys are well fed, and their uniforms are well tailored, and clean. All this may change later. Then the cooties can move in. We will have to wait and see.

Already the World war is remembered through a twilight of Hollywood unreality. I seem to see John Gilbert limping home on one leg. Against a background of male voices singing "Mademoiselle from Armentieres" is Sergeant Flagg thumbing his nose at Sergeant Quirt. You can close your eyes and see Gary Cooper climbing from the wreckage of a plane. You can see Jean Harlow of Hell's Angels fading into a background of Vienna waltzes, and the mistlike apparition of dirigibles dropping bombs over London.

WELL, it's a new day. The playwrights and the scenario writers will have to wait a little while before the New Order shapes itself in their imaginations. For instance, only the old-fashioned governments like England and France bother to formally declare war any more. The Kaiser was a past master at providing the drama writers with material. His declaration of war against Russia would have done credit, as a piece of impudence, to Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht.

Count Pourtales was the Kaiser's representative to Russia. This is how the Kaiser instructed Count Pourtales to break the news to the Russian Minister of War: "I have the honor, on behalf of my government, to inform your excellency as follows:

"His Majesty, the Kaiser, my august Sovereign, accepts the challenge in the name of the Empire!"

What challenge? Everybody was mobilizing and everybody was scared to death. For a period of two days "challenges" like this flew all over Europe. . . . And out of it came the war as the movies and the theater now let us remember it. Barbed wire and muddy trenches, hand grenades, and plump French girls strolling under the apple trees in Normandie. . . . But in the Ledgers are written the names of nine million dead.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Editor's Note—Today's award of the Brass Ring gives a rough ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round to American airplane manufacturers.)

WASHINGTON—You might be able to feel sorry for the airplane manufacturers who got caught by the neutrality embargo with several hundred unfinished Allied airplanes, if it weren't for two facts.

In the first place, the French and British are paying for the planes whether they are able to take delivery of them or not; and in the second place, it was American airplane manufacturers who helped build up Hitler's present gigantic airplane strength to the point where the French and British must make feverish purchases in the United States to offset Germany. All of which puts the airplane manufacturers in the neat position of making money either going or coming.

In fact, they are the one group sure to profit from the new world war. Profits first started just about the time Adolf Hitler came into power in Germany in 1933. Up until then the German airplane industry was almost nil. Only commercial planes were being manufactured and even these had few new developments of motors or wings.

Came Hitler, however, and suddenly Germany took a prodigious interest in aviation, so great an interest that it was plain to anyone that their planes could not be commercial. And at this exact moment American companies stepped into the picture.

Motors for Germany.

GERMANY at that time needed new and up-to-date motors, so she purchased them from the Pratt and Whitney company of Hartford, Conn. These shipments increased steadily so that by 1934, according to a senate committee which subsequently investigated munitions, "Pratt and Whitney shipped engines to Germany in great quantities" (1934 was the second year after Hitler came into power.)

These shipments were made when the state department, in 1933 and 1934, was appealing to American aviation manufacturers not to sell to Germany but to assist the American government in carrying out the terms of the U. S.-German peace treaty. (Mr. Hull reversed himself in 1935 and has been permitting arms shipments ever since.)

The Pratt and Whitney motors being sold to Germany had been developed with the co-operation of the United States army and navy. In fact, the senate munitions committee went so far as to state in its official findings that "the army and navy help to design, develop, and to finance the development of Pratt and Whitney engines which are sold subsequently with substantial profits for Pratt and Whitney."

Sale of Patents.

DESPITE this, the Pratt and Whitney people eventually sold their patents to the Bavarian Motor company, giving that company the right to manufacture in Germany on a royalty basis. But it became embarrassing for the Nazis to let the French know how rapidly they were making planes, so the Bavarian Motor company wrote to Pratt and Whitney that they "did not want to reveal the number of engines manufactured." After that their royalty was obligingly changed by Pratt and Whitney to $50,000 annually.

That the Pratt and Whitney people were fully aware of the fact that they were re-arming Germany was indicated in a letter written by its vice president, C. W. Deeds, to the effect that "their (Germany's) situation had changed and it is obvious that they desire engines for military as well as commercial purposes."

The letter was written to recommend a new Hornet motor to the Nazis. This was just as Hitler launched his tremendous rearmament drive, and at a time when Secretary Hull still was trying to discourage arms shipments to Germany.

It is interesting to note that Pratt and Whitney was the one firm to stand out against Secretary Hull's move to dissuade the sale of planes to Japan because of that country's horrible massacre of civilians in China. Finally, when Mr. Hull announced publicly that Pratt and Whitney was the only airplane company still doing business with Japan, the firm capitulated.

Hull's Legal Powers.

IT is also interesting to note that in 1933 and 1934, when Mr. Hull was asking American firms not to sell arms to Germany, he had no legal power to restrain them. But after the Neutrality Act was passed in 1935 giving him that legal power, his career boys put him in the position of legalizing arms shipments to Germany, and he has continued that policy ever since.

Among those behind Pratt and Whitney are F. B. Rentschler, who has put up much of the money and whose brother is a high official of the National City Bank; also C. W. Deeds, formerly with the National Cash Register company; W. B. Mayo, president of the Chicago, Duluth and Georgian Bay Transit company; E. O. McDonnell of the G. M. P. Murphy investment banking company; and Peter Frazer of the Commercial Mutual Life Insurance company.

Rise of Lockheed.

ONE of the most prosperous aviation companies in the United States today is the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation of Burbank, Calif., which has been earning from 67 cents up on its common stock (though not paying dividends), and recently floated 112,454 new shares of stock. Its export business has led all other American companies.

Today Lockheed is filling an order from Great Britain for 250 reconnaissance planes at a cost of $108,000 per plane (total cost $27,000,000), and received another order of 100 planes from the British just before war was declared. Lockheed's backlog of orders is in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.

Yet a few years ago the Lockheed company was negotiating with the giant internationally-owned Skoda munitions works for the purchase of secret airplane drawings and engineering data for only $30,000. Skoda was planning to use the Lockheed plans to manufacture planes for Germany.

All of which led the senate munitions committee to conclude that "American aviation firms did their part to assist Germany's rearmament" and thus to create the present predicament in which the world finds itself. The committee named specifically Lockheed, Douglas, Pratt and Whitney, Sperry Gyroscope and Curtiss-Wright.

(Editor's Note—Another Merry-Go-Round column on the profits of the munitions companies will follow soon).

We Visited the Zoo

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE TOOK our children to the zoo. None of the four had ever seen a lion, or heard it roar; they had never seen an elephant, a zebra, a camel or a monkey. The two oldest counted the days, and then the hours, until we would start.

The morning came, dark and cloudy. Soon it was raining. We did not wish to disappoint them and so we started, anyway, almost against our own judgment. It rained heavily until we reached the last ten miles of the fifty-mile trip, but riding in the rain was pleasure of a quiet sort. Then blue patches began to appear in the sky ahead, and soon the sun shone, bright and warm.

We followed down the upper edge of the dammed-up lake, along a pretty drive. The oats shocks stood drenched; from the fields of blooming clover came a delicate, wet fragrance. I caught the odorous whiff of growing, well-eared corn as we drove by the tall, green fields.

"The littlest boy will get too tired," my wife suggested. "You take the other three to see the sights, and he and I will wait in the car awhile." I acquiesced.

Then, suddenly, we came upon the park, and had a glimpse of the animal houses. Scarcely had we alighted, when I saw my wife with the two-year-old by the hand, slowly follow us.

"He wanted to see the animals," was all she said, and I understood. "Perhaps it is the best way we both will ever get to see a zoo," I thought, "through the eager, gleeful eyes of our children."

We started out, high spirited and expectant, and we were not disappointed.

We moved slowly from the giant Bengal tigers, the fierce, roving lions, the spotted leopards, to the cages of the vultures, tropical birds, hawks, owls and eagles. A pair of ostriches were very interesting. Then to the house of the monstrous mother elephant and her baby, to the deer, the bison and finally we stopped a long time at the monkey cage. It was feeding time, and how they stole from one another, and ran up high to be alone while eating. Real monkey business.

When we returned, at evening time, I carried the sleepy youngest up to bed. That night we were awakened by the lusty scream of the second boy. "Run, Bill, run! The elephant is loose and will eat you up!" But Bill was tired and slept on.

Words of Wisdom.

GRIFFITH TURNS DOWN DEM CIVIL SERVICE VOTE

Rejects Referendum Petitions But Gets Court Order to Withhold Action.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Petitions calling for a referendum on the new civil service reorganization act were rejected today by Secretary of State Earl Griffith, but a sponsor of the referendum said that the action "has no effect whatsoever."

Griffith mailed notification of his action to a committee of Democrats last night—then went to his home in Mt. Gilead and found Morrow County Sheriff Oscar George waiting to serve him with a court order restraining Griffith from taking "any action in relation" to the new legislation.

Governor Bricker told his press conference that he regarded the law as in effect because the Democrats' referendum petition had been formally rejected by the secretary of state, regardless of the litigation.

Favors Court Ruling.

The governor added, however, that he favored settling the question in the supreme court and that meanwhile he would make no appointment of a third member of the civil service commission provided for in the law.

H. T. Chapman, secretary of the provisional state employes' association, which worked with the state Democratic organization in obtaining signatures on referendum petitions, said Griffith's action was void because Judge Dana F. Reynolds, who granted the restrainer in Columbus yesterday, specified that no notice of the ruling was necessary since notice would defeat the purpose of this action."

The secretary of state said he threw out the petitions, which had blocked effectiveness of the revised statute, because "under the attorney general's ruling the petitions had about 6,000 invalid names."

Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert told Griffith Saturday that he was empowered to invalidate individual signatures and some entire sheets on grounds of irregularities.

The restraining order explicity forbid Griffith to certify the revised law as operative. The bill was to have gone into effect Sept. 6, but was blocked when the petitions were filed Sept. 5.

"I hadn't intended doing that, anyway," Griffith said today. "That won't be done until this matter is settled in court."

Judge Reynolds granted the injunction at the request of Democratic State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach. The court also was asked by Limbach to compel Griffith to transmit the petitions to county boards of election to determine the validity of some 146,000 signatures.

The law required that the petition bear 144,773 signatures. Limbach's committee filed approximately 146,200. Refusal of Griffith to send the petition back to the county election boards for a determination of the sufficiency of signatures deprived Limbach's group of the privilege of soliciting additional signatures to make up the deficiency.

GETS ADVANCE

Bellville First Subdivision to Ask Share of Tax Receipts.

Bellville, the first county subdivision to ask for an advance against the property tax collection for the last half of the year, had been allotted $880 today by County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe.

Other districts probably will seek advances shortly, Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck said, because the half-year tax receipts will not be distributed until late in November.

The fact that schools have just opened and did not require so much financing accounts for the delay in requesting advances, Beck said.

Tax receipts for the last half of the year will total nearly $600,000, a large part of which will go to the Mansfield, Shelby and rural school districts.

Zimmerman Leads Air Corps Squad On 2-Week Tour

Major James L. Zimmerman, 189 Cline avenue, commanding officer of an Air Corps Reserve Officers squadron, which has Port Columbus as its base, returned Saturday night after a two-week tour which took the officers to Wright Field, Dayton; Langley field, Virginia; Mitchell field, Long Island, and the Curtiss airplane plant at Buffalo.

While the intensified training the past two weeks was merely an annual routine, there was added interest and significance in it this year because of the European war, Zimmerman said.

Zimmerman is on the list of active Air Corp Reserve officers and has been flying every week or two since he left the air corps after the World war

The squadron, made up of 35 men of central and northeast Ohio, receives techincal training, practice formation flying, night navigation, blind flying and "dog fights" in the air.

Reserve Officers ranks already have begun to swell as the army builds its air reserve to emergency basis, Zimmerman said. Applicants must be between 21 and 35 years, and must have had 300 hours of flying time.

Zimmerman is the only Mansfield man who is on the active list of air corp officers.

KNICKERBOCKER SEES WAR LAST FOR SIX YEARS

Claims Russia's Action to Invade Poland, Jap Pact Will Extend Conflict.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—The world can now look forward to a war probably lasting six years as a result of the events of the last week-end.

For in the opinion of professional observers, active entry of Soviet Russia into the war, plus the Russo-Japanese agreement, have added another two years to its likely duration.

This calculation is based upon the present belligerents alone, and does not take into consideration any kind of American participation

Officials in London ever since the beginning of the war have been most careful to avoid any appearance of propagandizing America, but every announcement of American public opinion is naturally read with greatest interest and today's report of the latest Gallup poll is no exception.

Among the opinions of the American public therein reported, one certainly should find no one to share it on this side—namely, that the war is going to last less than a year.

It certainly was difficult today to maintain a note of optimism in the allied communiques which had to include the sinking of the Courageous. But the loss of this war vessel actually was bound to increase the fighting spirit of England, where the navy is the most treasured of all institutions.

Sees Reds, Nazis Agree.

Russia's invasion of Poland on the other hand, it is believed here, may incur the following consequences or the accompanying events,

First, Hitler will withdraw larger forces from Poland sooner than had been expected before Russia marched. He has already begun to do so, which indicates that he is not fearful of the Red army but has a genuine military agreement with Stalin.

Second, the smaller part of these forces Hitler will send to the western front to reinforce his line against the French attack, while he will dispatch a large force to Rumania at the same time that Russia attacks Rumania and Bessarabia.

Rumania, if attacked by Germany and Russia at the same time, will be in a militarily hopeless position, and won't have even as much chance as Poland had to defend herself.

The great object now for Hitler, however, is the Rumanian oil fields and it is now believed he has arranged with Stalin to divide Rumania. Since Hitler, however, will have seized the lion's share of both Poland and Rumania; Stalin, it is believed, will take compensation by occupying Estonia and Latvia and maybe also Finland.

The effect of all these events upon Turkey at any rate is not calculated to promote her enthusiasm over entering actively on the Allied side.

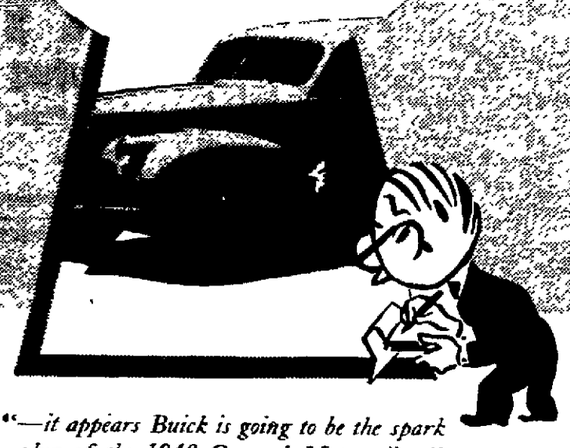
A PEEK THROUGH THE KEYHOLE AT NEXT YEAR



"—it appears Buick is going to be the spark plug of the 1940 General Motors lines"
—from a recent issue of the magazine STEEL

WE think the statement quoted above takes in altogether too much territory.

Everyone knows all General Motors cars are good cars and good values—no one division needs to "spark plug" that great line.

Just the same, it's true that here at Buick we're straining our suspenders to produce something special for 1940.

We've spent, for example, eight millions more for tools, dies and new plant equipment to make sure of that.

We plan to offer you for next year not only our accustomed four Series of cars, but two completely new numbers also.

There'll be something pretty important for you to learn about in connection with making our famed Dynaflash engines even more to be desired.

In every Buick there'll be more swell features of ride and stride than you've got time to count.

So, whether we're "spark plug" or not next year—who cares?

The main thing is, we'll be "in there pitching" with the grandest automobiles you ever saw!

E. Junker and Herschel S. Maglott, son of Mrs. Laura Maglott. Rev. Samuel R. Parrett, pastor of the Mansfield Gospel Center, officiated for the wedding which was read at the bride's home on R. D. 2.

An improvised altar was arranged before the fireplace and decorated with beauty baskets of white gladioli, palms, and ferns. A pair of seven-branch candelabra at the altar and baskets of garden flowers throughout the home completed the nuptial setting.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white double net gown made with shirred bodice, puffed sleeves and a squared neckline, and a long, full skirt. Her headpiece was composed of a band of gardenias, and she carried a matching bouquet.

Lucy, dear:

Marianne

It seems that this is almost topcoat weather again—but I don't believe any of us really mind, because it's such a pleasant relief from the extreme heat wave we experienced last week. . . . And though I don't know whether to blame it on the recent heat or the present cold, there is a little scarcity in the news I have for you today.

* * * *

Probably most exciting is the announcement of the engagement of Alice Hadley Gay to Sherwood Bassett Seely. . . .I'm sure you know Alice, Lucy. She has been a teacher at the Country Day school here for the past year and a half. . . .Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Gay of Glimmerstone, Cavendish, Vt., announced the engagement and coming nuptials at a tea party last Saturday afternoon. . . .Alice and Sherwood (his home is in Staten Island, N. Y.) plan to be married in November.

* * * * *

MARTHA GIFFIN was in town over the week-end—she drove up from Lebanon, where she's been since Labor Day teaching school. . . . Her father, Earl G. Giffin, came home from the hospital after an operation some two weeks ago. . . . Martha, you know, is art supervisor in the public schools at Lebanon—this is her second year there. . . . Her sister, Naomi, is leaving later this week for Oxford, where she will be a sophomore at Miami university.

* * * * *

Speaking of school teachers, Marion Grudier has just returned to Syracuse, N. Y., where she teaches English at Syracuse university. . . . She spent the summer here visiting with her mother, Mrs. Helen L. Grudier.

* * * * *

A STEADY stream of college students is still leaving town. . . . Mary Leigh Burleson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Burleson, went back to Ann Arbor yesterday to resume her studies at the University of Michigan. . . . Two other Mansfield girls, who have gone up to Ann Arbor for school, are Mary Black, daughter of Mrs. Grace Black, and Marjorie Mahon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mahon. . . . They will be freshmen at the University of Michigan.

* * * * *

Northwestern university has also beckoned some Mansfielders to her campus on the shores of beautiful Lake Michigan in Evanston, Ill. . . . Barbara Kerr, daughter of Mrs. Mary Kerr, will be a junior at the school this year, and she's looking forward to the new experience of living in her sorority (Chi Omega) house on the campus. . . . Richard Angle, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Angle, and John Pole, son of Mrs. A. P. Pole, have both gone back to N. U. for their senior years.

* * * * *

* * * * *

William Peppard, son of Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Peppard, has gone out to Palo Alto, Cal. for his senior year at Stanford university. . . . Bill, who's a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, will be managing-editor of the Stanford daily campus paper. His sister, Mrs. Paul Wilmore (who, you'll remember, Lucy, lived here until about a month ago) went out with him and took along her children, Woody and Shirley. . . . They plan to stay on the west coast for several months—as Mr. Wilmore is there already, located in San Francisco, where he is affiliated with the General Electric company. . . . And in fact, the Wilmores may take up permanent residence in one of San Francisco's suburbs.

* * * * *

AS usual in September, news of vacationers comes second to that of college students—but here is a little for today, Lucy. . . . Mr. and Mrs. George Faust have just returned from a ten days' motor trip, which took them over 1500 miles; they stopped off at the World's fair, traveled through the New England states, and visited with relatives at Brattleboro, Vt., before coming back to Mansfield.

* * * * *

AND I'm afraid that's just all the news I have for you today, Lucy. . . . Write me soon, and I'll try to be a better newshawk next week.

Lovingly,

Marianne
